Only 78 jailed for tax evasion

By LESTER KINSOLVING
Times-News Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Only 78 people in the United States are serving federal prison sentences for income tax evasion, the Times-News has learned.
And among more than 100 million U. S. citizens who filed income tax last year — which returns are inspected by computers — an average of only 1,200 have been convicted of tax evasion each year during the past decade, according to the U. S. Department of Justice.
During an interview Wednesday, C. Guy Tadlock, executive assistant to the assistant attorney general in charge of tax division, told the Times-News:

"That all but .008 of one per cent of Americans pay the taxes they believe are legally due. This is a great tribute to the American people."
Tadlock declined to comment upon the conviction, for income tax evasion, of former vice president Spiro Agnew.
But he added, "We always ask for a prison sentence whenever anyone pleads guilty or is found guilty of willful tax evasion. There is, however, a tremendous variance amongst judges. In some cases they hand down five year sentences but in other cases, they just don't send anyone to prison."
In the White House at Wednesday's press briefing, President Nixon's deputy press secretary Gerald Warren was asked by the Times-News:

"Since there are only 78 people serving prison sentences for tax evasion, and since President Agnew has asked the public for compassion for Agnew, has the President considered giving executive clemency to the 78 lesser known tax evaders?"
Deputy secretary Warren's sole response to this query was to refer it to the Justice Department.
Later during the press briefing, the Times-News asked if the President has contemplated applying executive clemency in the event that former vice president Agnew is indicted and convicted by Maryland authorities:

Sinai clash rages

By United Press International
Israeli and Egyptian armored forces today fought the second day of an epic tank battle in the Sinai desert east of the Suez canal that may become the decisive action of the Middle East war. Israel tried to infiltrate more commandos into Egypt.

The Egyptians claimed to be surrounding Israeli commandos trying to infiltrate through the Bitter Lakes near the center of the canal and have given them the choice "either to surrender or face destruction."

With the probability that the battlefield issue must be decided before the peace-makers can take over, both sides were claiming victories.

The latest Egyptian communiqué said Egyptian forces inflicted "adverse losses" on the Israelis in fighting which it described as fierce and in depth. These included 12 Israeli planes. It also said the Egyptian navy sank one vessel of an Israeli force attacking Port Said at the northern end of the canal.

Israel said its forces, with artillery and air support, shot down two Egyptian MIGs and two helicopters carrying Egyptian troops into battle.

From the 3 p.m. (10 p.m. EDT) Egyptian communiqué, it appeared the Israeli infiltrators were a different force and perhaps reinforcements for the Israeli task force which got across the canal in amphibious tanks on Tuesday to hit missile and antiaircraft sites behind Egyptian lines.

Israel has claimed that force is still operating, while the Egyptians have claimed it was wiped out.

In Beirut, military analysts believed the Egyptians were trying to breakout of their narrow front on the eastern side of the canal.

In Washington, U.S. budget director Roy L. Ash said that the Middle East war will cost the United States between $500 million and $700 million, presumably for arms aid to Israel.

Hansen size may double

HANSEN — A planned 80-home subdivision and a recently completed 76-unit mobile home park will more than double the population of Hansen, according to a city councilman.

"Between the two of them, it is going to put pressure on the school" and the city's water system, Councilman George Urie said today.

City officials recently approved plans for a 23-acre subdivision north of Highway 30 to be developed by Regal Manufacturing Co., Twin Falls.

Vic Graybeal, marketing manager for Regal, said groundbreaking for the 80-home development will be held "around Nov. 1," with the first home to be completed around March 1 in 1974.

The entire development should be completed in mid-1975, according to Graybeal. Homes in the subdivision will be in the $20,000 to $30,000 range, he added.

Graybeal estimated at least 240 residents in the new subdivision. The population of Hansen is 415.

A 76-unit mobile home park, developed by Keith Silar, was recently completed west of the planned subdivision. The park will add at least 228 people to the city's population, according to Urie.

(See related story, p. 15)

"This will make a necessity of the school bond," Urie said.

A $380,000 school bond issue will be decided by Hansen voters on Nov. 5. If passed, the issue will pay for a new elementary school.

Rim subdivision precedent rapped

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Approval of the Meander Points subdivision on the Snake River Canyon rim will establish "a precedent that shouldn't be established," county commissioner William Wiseman said Wednesday.

The subdivision was approved by the county commission Monday, with Wiseman casting a "nay" vote.

Property owner and developer Harold Frazier said Tuesday, following approval, that he intends to move ahead with development "immediately."

Wiseman said, in his opinion, the subdivision, which is about six miles outside the city limits, will establish a bad pattern of "leapfrogging" growth "which is something we have been against."

Wiseman also said he thought more study was needed on the effects of installing individual septic tanks to serve the 53 homesites in the subdivision.

In addition, Wiseman said, the county was picking up "law enforcement" and transportation liability.

Energy office created, Gem fuel rules set up

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News Writer

BOISE — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Wednesday announced four steps including creation of a state office of energy that he said marked the "beginning of an era of voluntary and mandatory energy restrictions."

Speaking to the Idaho Press Club's Headliner Luncheon, Andrus said the actions were needed to conform to the "common goal of greater efficiency in energy consumption." Noting the Idaho energy situation is "reasonably good," the governor said action was needed to prevent the development of a crisis.

The four steps Andrus outlined Wednesday include:

— Creation of the office of energy under the direction of Public Utilities Commissioner Robert Lenaghan, funded initially by the governor's emergency fund. Andrus said he would seek legislative funding for the office next winter, but warned the office would not be temporary. He foresaw the need for it of "at least a period of three years and perhaps longer."

A directive that state vehicles reduce their maximum speed to 60 miles per hour, regardless of posted speed limits. Excluded from the directives are law enforcement and emergency vehicles. Nothing the measure was largely a symbolic gesture, the governor asked Idahoans to follow the example when driving private vehicles.

A telegram sent to the state congressional delegation that asked for legislation to extend daylight savings time year round. The telegram said the change could be an "effortless, yet practical way of conserving electricity" with longer daylight hours.

Geothermal lease papers 'historic'

By DAVID ESPO
T-N Boise Bureau

BOISE — They have become almost instant "historical documents," a stack seven inches high buried in a file drawer in the Department of Public Lands.

While the State Land Board tries to decide what to do with geothermal resources in Idaho, the lease applications filed over the past several months have been denied. There have been nearly 1,400 leases for about 800,000 acres requested, most of them by the Anschutz Corp. from Denver, Colo.

According to Ed Middlemist, state mineral lease inspector, when the hand board turned down the applications, he simply stored the forms in his office. They are for geothermal resources in more than 20 of the state's 44 counties, and according to Middlemist, were filed on land where the state was considered to have retained mineral rights, regardless of who owned surface rights.

The land board has scheduled a series of public hearings across the state prior to formulating final rules to govern the leases. The last hearing is now scheduled for

Twin Falls later this month. The applications cover areas from the Teton Range in eastern Idaho across the southern part of the state to the western border. Most of the old lease requests in the Magic Valley area were for land in Cassia County, but others were for acreage in Camas, Blaine, Twin Falls, Elmore, Gooding and Minidoka counties.

But they, like the entire stack of leases, were denied by the land board because it was felt the state wasn't in a position to begin issuing the leases.

According to Middlemist, each of the lease applications was accompanied by a $5 fee that was not returned to the corporation filing the application. The only money returned when the leases were denied was the royalty fee of 25 cents an acre.

The lease applications themselves weren't returned, either, Middlemist said, because the law doesn't require it.

He also estimated it would take about two and a half years to inventory the state's geothermal resources — to determine where the state has retained the rights.

Nixon wins round

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Chief Judge John J. Sirica ruled Wednesday the United States District Court here lacked jurisdiction to handle the Senate Watergate committee's request for President Nixon's secret tape recordings.

Dismissing the committee's lawsuit to obtain the tapes, he ruled on the narrow issue of whether the committee had any right to come before the court, and did not deal with the merits of the case.

It was the first clear-cut victory for the White House in the struggle over the tapes Nixon made of conversations in his offices. The recordings contain material that may show who has been telling the truth in the investigation of the Watergate conspiracy.

Earlier, in a suit by Archibald Cox, the special Watergate prosecutor, Sirica ruled that the tapes must be produced for private judicial screening to determine what could be turned over to the federal grand jury. That ruling has been upheld by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia circuit.

Gerald L. Warren, deputy presidential press secretary, said, "We're pleased with the results."

Rufus L. Edmisten, deputy chief counsel of the committee, said he thought the chairman, Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., would probably poll the committee members on whether to take the case to the U. S. Court of Appeals.

Hammett accident kills boy

HAMMETT — A 13-month-old boy died beneath the wheels of a heavy potato truck driven by his father Wednesday in the Hammett Labor Camp.

Deputy Sheriff George Taylor identified the child as Arnaldo Arredondo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perfecto Arredondo Jr.

He said the child was killed instantly about 1 p.m. when the truck, pulled away from the family apartment and passed over the child's head. The officer said Arredondo had stopped to check on his wife who was baby-sitting with their child and several other children.

As he left the home, the officer said, the child apparently followed him but the father thought he was still in the apartment with the other children.

Arredondo, 30, walked around the front of the truck and entered on the opposite side, driving away while the small child was still in front of the vehicle and hidden from view. He was unaware of the accident until another boy ran after him and flagged him down, the officer said.

The family has been living at the labor center during the fall harvest season but are permanent residents of Alamo, Tex., officers said.

Judge denies tape request

NEW YORK (UPI) — A federal judge today denied a request by former Attorney General John Mitchell for all White House tape recordings and records that may have a bearing on his conspiracy trial.

Judge John J. Gagliardi, however, directed federal prosecutors to indicate to him by next Tuesday whether there are any specific White House tapes involving the government's perspective witnesses.

If there are such records, Gagliardi said, he wants them turned over to him for private study to determine if they are relevant to the issue in the trial scheduled to start Tuesday.

If the government refuses to comply, Gagliardi said, the prospective witnesses would then be barred from testifying at the trial in Manhattan federal court.

Mitchell's co-defendant, former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans, had joined in the defense subpoena for the White House tape recordings and records.

The prospective government witnesses included, former legal aide John W. Dean III, President Nixon's two brothers, Donald and Edward, and former White House domestic affairs advisor John Ehrlichman.

Gagliardi quashed the subpoena calling on the President to produce all tape recordings and records concerning meetings and conversations among Nixon, his aides and Henry Kissinger, a prominent New Jersey Republican who is a co-defendant in the case to be tried later.

The subpoena called for the records in the period between November 1971 and January 1973.

This subpoena, Gagliardi said, was "overbroad and clearly a fishing expedition."

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Memorial Hospital reported a full house today. The 126-bed facility had a total of 135 patients today, counting 12 newborn infants. Hospital officials said three beds were still available in the intensive care unit, one in the obstetrics department and a few cribs for infants.

US tax evasion convictions few

"This matter has been thoroughly aired," the President does have the authority to extend executive clemency," answered Warren, with no further response or explanation.

The press briefing took place only hours after Warren Duckett, state's attorney in Anne Arundel County, Md., asked a grand jury to hand down an indictment against Agnew.

Duckett said that he would not be bound by the expressed wishes of either U.S. Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson or Maryland Governor Marvin Mandel, both of whom have hoped that Agnew will not be indicted by Maryland authorities.

Agnew's farewell speech was chock full of contradictions, contradictions and inconsistencies," commented "If you took each of his points and laid them out," they just don't jibe."

Justice Department lawyers, the Washington Post reported Wednesday, were prepared to ask a federal grand jury to indict Agnew on 15 counts of bribery, extortion and tax evasion. The Justice Department released 40 statements, outlining the government's detailed charges that Agnew sought and received thousands of dollars in kickbacks from engineers while he was Baltimore County executive, governor of Maryland and vice president. On Capitol Hill, the Senate was in recess, but in the House, the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973 was passed 337-72, with three members voted "present."

The measure would authorize the President to "allocate crude oil and refined petroleum products to deal with existing or imminent shortages and dislocations in the national distribution system which jeopardize the public's health, safety or welfare."

Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, voted for the measure.

Rep. Steven Symms, R-Idaho, voted against the legislation, and in an exclusive interview with the Times-News, gave the reasons: "I am opposed to this bill because there are two ways to allocate resources — the free market system by which buyers voluntarily bid on petroleum products, and using government force for mandatory allocation of resources, as this bill does."

"We ought to abolish the Cost of Living Council and let the market system work its will," Symms said. "We are trying to let in socialism (through this bill) instead of letting free enterprise work."

The Idaho lawmaker introduced an amendment which was defeated by a voice vote which would have, he said, had the termination date of this bill the same as the termination date for the Cost of Living Council.

"If we allocate resources," he said, "it should be the free market approach rather than by government force, which is a very bad concept and won't solve any problems or produce a single barrel of oil."

"It's a lousy bill," Symms said.

Beirut bank robbed

BEIRUT (UPI) — Several men armed with submachine guns invaded the Bank of America in downtown Beirut today, seized hostages and demanded $10 million for the Arabs fighting Israel, witnesses said.

Witnesses said at least three persons, including a policeman, were wounded in an exchange of fire between the gunmen and police who cordoned off the bank.

The witnesses said the gunmen believed to number between five and eight — threw a message from a bank window demanding the money. They also demanded safe conduct and a plane to take them out of Lebanon.

The gunmen entered the bank around noon and seized an undisclosed number of hostages, witnesses said. They were armed with various weapons including Kalashnikov submachine guns — a type used by the Palestinian guerrillas.

TWIN FALLS — One drug store was burglarized in Twin Falls Wednesday night, two others had broken windows or doors and a Kimberly drug store received a broken window.

Qualls identified the suspect as Alfred Franklin Davis Jr., 23, Twin Falls. He was arrested by city police in the 600 block of Fourth Avenue North after officers spotted a vehicle fitting the description broadcast by Kimberly city officers after the window of the Kimberly Drug was found broken out.

Other broken windows were reported at the Magic Valley Drug and the Sav-Mor Drug, both in Twin Falls. In both instances, owners said windows or doors were broken out but it did not appear the buildings had been entered.

Famous Scalp Specialist Tells Truth About Saving Falling Hair

These private individual consultations will be held at Apollo Inn, 296 Addison Ave. on Friday, Oct. 19th only, from 12:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Ask hotel clerk for Mr. Conner. He will do the rest. Phone 733-2010.

Twin Falls, Oct. 18 — In an interview T. C. Conner, nationally famous consultant and director of the International Hair and Scalp Specialists, Inc., said, "There are many different scalp disorders that cause most men and women to lose hair. Using common sense, a person must realize no one tonic or so-called cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.

Guaranteed. "International, recognizing that most people are skeptical," Conner said, "Once a person avails himself of the International treatment, his skepticism immediately disappears. You will be given a written guarantee from the beginning to end on a pro-rated basis."

Hopeless Cases Discouraged
First the International consultants are quick to tell hopeless cases that they "cannot be helped. But the 'hopeless' cases are few. Everyone is given a complete private consultation to determine the condition of his or her scalp, and cause for their hair trouble."

Free Consultations
This consultation is very thorough and highly technical. It requires 20 to 30 minutes. There is no charge for this consultation and no appointment is necessary. After the consultation he or she is told the required length of treatment and how much it will cost. After starting treatment, Conner will return to check client's progress, as he has, periodically, for many years.

To provide the opportunity of having normal, healthy hair to the thousands who are desperately looking for help, the firm is sending consultants to various cities throughout the United States to conduct consultation and start home treatment.

Hopeless Cases Refused
No Cure All... We have no cure-all for slick, shiny baldness. International specialists will accept only clients whose hair we feel sure, will respond to treatment. They cannot help individuals who are slick bald, or the majority of cases of baldness, and excessive hair loss, called male pattern baldness, where no treatment, including the International treatment, is of any value. Therefore, International will continue their policy of refusing all hopeless cases. There is one thing Conner wants to be certain every man and woman knows. If hair appears to be thinning or falling out on the crown of the head, there is something wrong and it should be given immediate attention.

Hair for Lifetime
If clients follow our directions during treatment, and after they finish the course, there is no reason why they will not have hair all the rest of their lives," Conner said. "Our firm is definitely behind this treatment; it all depends on the individual client's faithful observation of a few simple rules."

How's Your Hair?
If it worries you, just go to Apollo Inn, 296 Addison Ave., from 12:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 19th. Ask for Mr. Conner. Phone 733-2010. No appointment necessary. Interviews are given in private with no possible embarrassment.

Narcotics Mr. Big talks to TF club

TWIN FALLS — The man once fingered as the narcotics "Mr. Big" of Pocatello told his story to Twin Falls Rotarians Wednesday.

The Mr. Big is Mel Morgan, the Pocatello vice-mayor who was named by Idaho state narcotics informers as the head of a Pocatello drug ring. His spirited self-defense stirred storm waves in Idaho political circles and resulted in his public exoneration.

Morgan criticized the "gestapo tactics" of state narcotics agents.

He demanded they be placed under the control of "professional law enforcement officers" in the State Department of Law Enforcement instead of serving under the direction of the state's attorney general.

At the same time he vigorously defended the press, which he claimed was what eventually led to his exoneration.

Morgan had been the chief fund-raiser in Idaho for Democratic gubernatorial candidate William E. Davis in 1972, and following that had been asked by Gov. Cecil Andrus to become fund raiser for the Idaho Democratic Party.

Morgan was expected to be named party chairman. All that was before Morgan's troubles began with what he termed a "pipe dream" of a user of heroin who doubled as an informer for Idaho narcotics agents.

Morgan first got a hint of the investigation in a conversation with Andrus. Later, he attempted to contact Atty. Gen. Tony Park, but was not permitted a meeting. Then he said he became unwelcome even at the governor's office.

Morgan decided to defend himself in the press, making his version of the story available to several newspapers.

The upshot of press attention, he said, was that Park agreed to clear Morgan if Morgan would agree to take a polygraph test.

Morgan said he had not always done well on tests during his life, "but that was one test I passed with flying colors."

He complained that even though his name was cleared of the charges, the attorney general's office has a criminal file under Morgan's name.

One result of the episode, he said, was that he lost his chance to be Democratic Party chairman. Another was that he is uncertain how he stands with his former friend, Gov. Andrus.

Morgan expressed anger at the mode of operation of the state narcotics agents, who he charged engaged in illegal activities in order to make arrests.

He said the agents provide drugs to informers pay them up to $625 per month, sleep with them, and even arrange for burglaries to help raise money to "support informers' habits."

"I don't think you should use a burglar to catch a burglar," Morgan said.

Morgan said following the meeting that he himself had been responsible for making public the fact that he was being investigated.

He said the attorney general had argued that had the matter not been made public, it would have been disposed of during the normal course of investigation, without damage to Morgan's reputation.

TF man pleads innocent

TWIN FALLS — Michael J. Burks, 24, changed his plea from innocent to guilty in Fifth District Court on charges of receiving stolen property.

He was originally charged with second degree burglary involving the theft of properties from the old starch plant building. Judge James M. Cunningham accepted the new plea and ordered a presentence investigation with Burks free on bond pending the investigation.

Loren Dean Watson, 32, was placed on 36 months probation by Judge Cunningham with the 36 months to be spent either in the state mental hospital or Twin Falls County. He was charged with lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor child, a 12-year-old girl.

Bryce O. Sauer, 22, charged with first degree burglary of the Save-On Drug, was sentenced to five years in the control of the state board of pardons, and the sentence was commuted to 120 days to be served concurrently with a sentence in Jerome County.

Idaho to have two veterans days

TWIN FALLS — There will be two Veterans Days in Idaho this year — the federal holiday Oct. 22 and the state holiday Nov. 12.

Apparently workers will not have a choice and a quick survey fails to turn up any employers who plan to observe both dates.

Confusion may result, however, since federal offices including the post office will close Oct. 22 in line with the federal designation. Idaho legislators voted to return to the original Nov. 11 Armistice Day for the Gov. State observance. As a result, all city, county and state offices and the banks will close Nov. 12 because Nov. 11 is on Sunday.

Schools will be open both days including the College of Southern Idaho and most downtown stores plan to be open both days at latest reports.

Not only will the city hall in Twin Falls close Nov. 12, but the city is planning to assist with an observance at noon in city park with veterans' organizations. The raising of a new flag for the city park will mark the brief observance.

Milar, who said his announcements are not always correct the first time when it comes to city hall closing, said he has to be right this time. The council has adopted a resolution setting the official holidays to be observed during the year and Veterans Day is definitely on the list.

As for which day to observe, he said, the city will go along with the state designation.

150 employed at new store

TWIN FALLS — More than 150 persons have been employed by the new Kmart discount department store at Addison Avenue East and Eastland Drive with an opening date expected to be announced soon.

John E. Nance, manager of the new facility, said today additional employees will be added to the staff during peak seasonal periods.

Employees are now being trained to render fast and efficient service when the store opens, Nance said.

"We are anxious to announce the opening date as soon as we finalize the department layouts for ease of shopping," the manager said.

The new Twin Falls store is one of 1,225 Kmart stores operated by the S. S. Kresge Co., with headquarters in Troy, Mich.

Complaint filed

TWIN FALLS — A complaint has been filed in Fifth Judicial District Court by Homer Ramseyer against Donald and Duane Ramseyer, his two sons, seeking a share of the Ramseyer Cattle Co.

The plaintiff charges a partnership was formed in 1951 between the three men, each to have a third of the interest, assets, and revenue of the business.

Homer Ramseyer, Twin Falls, charges the defendants, Donald Ramseyer, Twin Falls, and Duane Ramseyer, Filer, have dissolved the original partnership without his knowledge or permission and transferred the assets to a new partnership between themselves and without giving him a division in the proceeds of the original Ramseyer Cattle Co.

He asks the court for judgment against the defendants, asks the partnership be dissolved and the defendants required to account to the plaintiff for his share of the property which he states should be one third or that the property be disposed of and the proceeds divided three ways.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK

Nixon: Saved From Party Rebellion

WASHINGTON — Only the selection of Rep. Gerald Ford as Vice President, an unexciting but supremely sensible choice, could have saved President Nixon from the menacing backwash of rebellion building in his own party last week.

In particular, Republican House members were working up a nasty temper last Friday waiting out Mr. Nixon's contrived suspense over a new Vice President. Months of growing resentment toward the President were reaching a climax. Republican Congressmen grumbled that the elaborate selection ceremony planned by Mr. Nixon for the White House East Room ill suited the mood of melancholy caused by Spiro T. Agnew's disgrace. Worst of all, they believed the President had his own mind made up and was sure to ignore their overwhelming recommendation of minority leader Ford.

The choice of Ford, then, was a pleasant, air-clearing surprise to the Congressmen and other key Republicans. By inhibiting his normal impulse for the exotic shock, Mr. Nixon for once satisfied the party faithful. Both on Capitol Hill and in the states, Republican leaders saw Ford as the Vice President who would least hurt the battered party.

The Republican mood prevailing through the rumor-filled hours Friday was typified by the ruggedly independent Rep. Barber Conable of New York, a member of the House GOP leadership. Like most colleagues, Conable privately viewed the ostentatious selection ceremony that night as shockingly poor taste in a time of national calamity.

So, instead of accepting an invitation to the East Room, Conable planned to honor a speaking engagement in his upstate Congressional District and duly informed his floor leader, Gerry Ford. But Ford somberly asked him to attend as a personal favor, and Conable — taking heart from that request — agreed to go.

Conable was not the only Republican who either stayed away from the East Room or was bludgeoned into attending. Sen. Barry Goldwater, fearing Nixon's non-concern for Republican fortunes would produce a party-splitting choice, left Friday morning for a country weekend on Maryland's Eastern Shore. He returned only after such pleading by the White House, still apprehensive that Mr. Nixon would rupture the party by selecting John B. Connally.

Goldwater had good reason for apprehension. Among the 1976 presidential possibilities (Connally, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and Gov. Ronald Reagan), Mr. Nixon long ago picked Connally as his favorite. Just Thursday afternoon, Connally was still in the picture.

But even before Agnew's resignation, it was clear that Democratic opposition and Republican misgivings regarding Connally had risen sharply. Once Agnew actually resigned, anti-Connally talk reached a fever pitch.

Presidential counselors Melvin R. Laird and Bryce Harlow, battle-seasoned veterans of Capitol Hill, reported to the President Thursday that Connally might well be rejected by the Senate and would not fare much better in the House. They also reported growing congressional sentiment for Ford. Beyond Capitol Hill, conservative state chairmen inclined toward Reagan sent word they would deeply resent Connally but accept Ford as no threat to Reagan.

Political allies advised Connally he should now avoid a bloody confirmation fight. Over the telephone Thursday night, the President and Connally agreed with this. Before he went to bed at Camp David that night, Mr. Nixon finally decided on Ford.

But Mr. Nixon's carefully staged suspense Friday generated unnecessary confusion and dismay. While he was having his only fun since Watergate broke, Mr. Nixon's zealously guarded secret nearly undid the rest of the party. Ford left his meeting with the President Friday morning without being selected, openly crestfallen. The gloom quickly permeated the Republican cloakroom and set off rumors of more exotic choices.

A strong but inaccurate Rockefeller rumor at midday caused threats by militantly conservative young Congressmen — such as Reps. Trent Lott of Mississippi and Robert Bauman of Maryland — to vote against him. Far wilder possibilities then surfaced, such as the politically preposterous selection of Chief Justice Warren Burger. "When I heard that," one Nixon aide confides, "I saw the last three years going down the drain." So closely was the secret held that Ford himself was not given the good news until 7 p.m.

After so many false alarms, the revelation of Gerry Ford triggered spontaneous cheers in the East Room. For once, Mr. Nixon had followed party advice and avoided a confrontation with Congress. Whether Ford is a "caretaker" Vice President or instead becomes a 1976 presidential contender, neither the Reagan nor the Rockefeller camps feel threatened today. Connally has not been saved by a congressional confirmation fight which, win or lose, would have scarred him as a presidential candidate. And for the first time in many long months, Republicans had some genuinely nice things to say about their President.

ANDREW TULLY

Wm. Rogers: I Told You So!

WASHINGTON — He won't do it, because he's not that kind of a man — but former Secretary of State William P. Rogers would be justified if he reminded President Nixon, "I told you so" about Spiro Agnew.

Rogers was the only Republican with intimate access to Richard Nixon who questioned Nixon's choice of Agnew as his running mate in the 1968 campaign. Rogers, former Attorney General under Eisenhower, and a knowledgeable lawyer with prestigious political connections, had nothing against Agnew; he merely believed that too little was known about the then governor of Maryland.

At one of three meetings with leading Republicans after his nomination, Nixon brought up Agnew's name and indicated that he favored the Marylander for the number two spot. There was a discussion about Agnew's strength as a vote-getter and his assets as governor of a border state. But only Rogers wondered aloud whether the meeting knew enough about him.

Undoubtedly speaking from his background as Attorney General, Rogers remarked that playing politics in Maryland was a rough game, and urged an in-depth checkup on Agnew merely as a prudent formality. Nixon heard out Rogers, one of his oldest friends, and then did nothing. As one Republican put it after Agnew's resignation as Vice President: "Nixon wanted Agnew, he didn't want any horsing around."

Thus it is now clear that Nixon made the mistake that was to be repeated four years later by Sen. George McGovern and his staff when their cursory check on Sen. Thomas Eagleton failed to disclose that Eagleton had undergone "shock treatments" for depression. The only difference was that Agnew's troubles did not surface until he had served a full term plus eight months as Vice President.

It is true that in 1968 other Republican leaders, privately expressed concern over the lack of a "hook" on Agnew. Chief among these was Arizona Senator Barry Goldwater, the 1964 GOP nominee, who told friends Agnew "should have gotten a good vetting." Others with doubts were Rep. John J. Rhodes, another Arizonan, Pennsylvania's Sen. Hugh Scott and Kentucky's Sen. John Sherman Cooper. But none of these had Nixon's ear as Rogers did. Meanwhile, former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, then Nixon's campaign manager, admitted to intimates that he would have preferred a "better look" at Agnew. However, Mitchell reportedly felt there wasn't time for a thorough check on Agnew's political background. Besides, Mitchell also reportedly said he was "sold" on Agnew's hard-line posture on the issue of law and order.

So it came down to Oct. 1973 in the destruction of Spiro Agnew as a politician by a 40-page Justice Department "exposition of evidence" submitted to Federal Judge Walter E. Hoffman in a Baltimore courtroom. If the evidence was supportable, Agnew got off easy by pleading nolo contendere (no contest) to an income tax evasion charge.

Because those 40 pages cited alleged acts of extortion and bribery over a 10 year period involving at least $100,000.

The damage to Richard Nixon as President cannot be accurately measured, but coming on the heels of the Watergate scandal, it has to be substantial. Quite aside from Watergate, Nixon twice picked Agnew as his running mate. True, Nixon couldn't possibly have had any suspicions about Agnew when he named him again in the summer of 1972. Had this been the case, he would have dumped his Vice President. But ignorance is also a political sin.

By rejecting the advice of Bill Rogers in the summer of 1968, Nixon broke one of politics' gravest commandments. He knew his enemy, but neglected to inquire into the ethical credentials of an ally.

There will be no repetition of the Chilean experience in the United States' closest Latin neighbor.

In an address before the recent annual convention of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association, a high Mexican government official emphatically rejected socialism as a means of achieving social justice in his country.

"Mexico has decided to seek a more just and equitable growth while preserving her traditions and the framework within which we live," Fausto Zapata Loredo, Undersecretary of the Presidency, told the newsmen.

"But we don't accept that growth at the expense of our liberty — and this means we're not interested in a socialist economy."

The term of President Luis Echeverria has been marked by scrupulous preservation of freedom of expression, said Zapata, and "we will never sacrifice the freedom of an individual's initiative."

Political stability has been maintained in Mexico for more than 40 years, he pointed out. During the past three decades, the economy has grown at an average annual rate of 6.5 per cent in real terms.

Yet in spite of this rapid growth, distribution of income has been unequal. This has necessitated a profound examination of past mistakes, with steps taken to correct them while preserving traditional principles.

Praising the United States for "an astounding capacity for self-examination" as revealed by the Watergate problem, Zapata asserted that without such an attitude, a society "is burying itself, whether in the short term or over the long term."

Mexico chose the path of freedom and has accepted all the risks this implies.

Food Problems

To citizens of the more advanced countries, the realities of life among a majority of the world's population are difficult to comprehend. One fact serves to bring those realities into focus. More than 50 per cent of children born in the world today, die before their sixth birthday.

Starvation is not the sole culprit, but it is the major one. And that is the reason why one of the most important discoveries which can be made today is a method for growing more food on the same or smaller plot of ground.

Purdue University researchers have come up with one of the latest methods of expanding production: a sorghum gene which could triple protein output in underdeveloped countries which rely heavily on sorghum for their basic diet. Adaptable to crossbreeding with other strains, the new discovery can be implemented quickly to increase production.

By itself this latest quantitative explosion will not correct the continuing imbalance between population growth and food, but it will help buy more time. Coupled with new strains of other grains which increase output per acre, the sorghum gene comes at a welcome time. Starvation of near crisis proportions is again faced by millions of people in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

The basic solution still lies in limiting population growth.

Complacency?

Chalk up another down-to-earth benefit from space.

Remember the fire that swept the top floor of the Military Personnel Records Center in St. Louis last July? Millions of the fire- and water-damaged records, which previously would have been unsalvageable, are being restored in a space chamber once used in the Mercury and Gemini missions.

The soggy records are trucked from the Center to McDonnell Douglas Corp. in light, open milk-carton cases. Each case holds about 200 records and 2,000 cases fit at one time into the 14-foot space chamber.

After the chamber is sealed, the drying process begins with a hot-to-cold cycle in which the records are heated to 140 degrees with warm, dry air, then frozen while the space chamber pressure is gradually lowered to 0.088 pounds per square inch (normal air pressure is 15 psi).

The frozen water molecules are squeezed from the documents by the pressure drop and vented from the chamber. A drying cycle takes from four to six minutes and complete drying requires about five days.

MR. SPECTATOR

We Were Reading The Ads

We were scanning the Wall Street Journal (Western of course) and came across some interesting bits of advertising.

For instance, we found that a producing coal mine was up for immediate sale. It was offered for approximately one and one-half cents per ton in place — including excellent equipment. There are over 320 million tons of recoverable reserves. Cash principals only are to be considered. Are you guys ready to buy?

Then there was the

BERRY'S WORLD

"Off hand, I'd say your plant is dying because you've talked to it too much."

opportunity to invest in a California vineyard. The company holds California, coastal vineyard land in inventory. Their expertise and time is limited to high quality developments. Only serious individuals or institutions need inquire. Are you guys ready to buy?

Another company (we guess it was a company) was offering 20.5 cents for regular gas anywhere in California — and in any quantity. You guys got any gas?

But perhaps the most interesting "ad" from the local standpoint was one offering a restaurant for sale in Sun Valley, Idaho.

"Great location at this world famous year-around resort," the advertisement said. "Some 6,000 square feet, 175 seat dining room and a 40 seat bar. Early western motif — fully equipped and ready to go in time for the ski season. Only restaurant available at this time in the area with a liquor license. $75,000 for improvements, plus $1,000 per month lease payments — or option to buy." Are you guys ready to buy?

Well, that's it for today's "advertisement" session from Mr. Spectator. Just thought you would like to know that if you have any extra cash there is still someone looking for it.

SPRING?

Must be getting close to spring even before winter gets here. Hardly a day goes by but that we do not receive a seed or plant catalog. So far we have held back on the natural urge to order — but we're still not so sure!

A BREAK

We (and you) will get a break this year. Halloween comes on a school day which means the tricks or treat stuff that night should not continue too late. Most of the guys and gals will have to get home to an empty bed so they can struggle through the next day of classes. Which all means that we (and you) should be able to get to bed as early as usual. Would you believe midnight or later?

WATER SEARCH

Well, the Bonneville Power Administration has negotiated a contract with North American Weather Consultants of Goleta, Calif., to apply to the State of Montana for a permit to make preparation for cloud seeding above Hungry Horse Dam.

Target area for the cloud seeding program is the drainage basin of the South Fork of the Flathead River above Hungry Horse Dam. There is still a lot of discussion to go on about this — but it well illustrates the desperate search for moisture which will fill the reservoirs and which, in turn, will provide the power now much needed.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE:

Husband to wife as they struggle over the budget: "We should have saved during the recession so we could live through this prosperity."

WHAT LEISURE?

Contrary to anything you have heard, we are still some distance away from becoming a leisure-oriented society with a lot of unfilling time on our hands.

True leisure time is actually shrinking among Americans, says Professor Roger Blackwell of Ohio State University, even as they become more affluent. More and more in the 24-hour day is taken up in getting to work, attending PTA meetings, working on income tax returns, doing work at home which should be done at the office, and what not.

Furthermore, he points out, the work week is not getting shorter. Overtime and second jobs have kept the average work week constant or lengthened it slightly. Also some 75 per cent of all families today have more than one wage earner, with 41 per cent of all wives working outside the home.

A QUOTATION

We pass on for your edification — a quotation attributed to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz while addressing a meeting of the American Meat Institute in Chicago.

"There are a lot of people these days wondering why the Secretary of Agriculture has not been canned. Well, maybe it's because he's been so damned right."

Nixon wins round over tapes

"I'm frankly not very upset about that decision. It is one that could easily be handed down. I can't imagine the court of appeals not reversing Judge Sirica," Edmisten said.

"We still have two excellent chances with the court of appeals and the Supreme Court," Sirica said the first step in bringing a lawsuit is to determine whether the courts have jurisdiction over the matter. The committee, he stated, failed in establishing this threshold.

He cited four reasons for his actions: — That the suit was improperly brought in the name of the United States. Such suits, he ruled, are only brought by the attorney general or authorized through an act of Congress, both of which are lacking in this case.

— That it does not deal with a clearly defined presidential duty. He said only "ministerial, plainly defined and precatory" duties of officers of the government are proper subjects for such legal proceedings.

"Regardless of whatever duty the president may owe the select committee (on presidential activities) as a citizen with evidence in his possession, it is not 'free from doubt' that his official responsibilities require compliance," the judge wrote.

"There is nothing in the Constitution, for example, that makes it an official duty of presidents to comply with Congressional subpoenas."

— That it is not the action of a "federal agency" and thus does not come under the administrative procedure act.

"There is some question whether the President is an 'agency' for purposes of the act, whether 'agency action' is involved here, and whether plaintiffs (the committee) have suffered 'legal wrong' within the meaning of these provisions," the judge stated.

"The final resolution of these problems, however, is unnecessary here since the rule in this circuit precludes use of this act altogether as an independent basis of jurisdiction."

— That it fails to meet the rule that federal civil cases must involve a minimum of $10,000 in value at stake.

"It is a requirement imposed by Congress which the courts may not dispense with at their pleasure," Sirica emphasized.

The committee had argued that costs of not turning over the tapes — extra staff costs, legislators time and associated costs — exceeded $10,000, but Sirica held the court "cannot accept such indirect costs as the amount-in-controversy."

Stand reversed

(c) Chicago Daily News

MIAMI BEACH — The AFL-CIO is reported ready today to support the impeachment of President Nixon if he defies any order the Supreme Court might issue to deliver the Watergate tapes for judicial scrutiny.

George Meany, president of the labor federation, got powerful backing for his stand on impeachment on the eve of the AFL-CIO convention.

The 70-year-old labor leader has declared a three-prong war on the President after pointedly refusing to invite Nixon to address the 3,000 delegates from 133 unions.

This was a sharp turnaround from Meany's 1972 "neutrality" policy in the presidential race that probably helped Nixon win a landslide victory over his Democratic opponent, Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota.

Demos won't rush on VP

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON — House Democrats have served notice on President Nixon that they would be in no hurry to confirm Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., as vice president and implied that the margin of confirmation might well depend on the outcome of the battle over the Watergate tapes.

The Democratic majority met in caucus and Rep. Peter J. Rodino, N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, which is charged with passing on Ford's nomination, predicted it might be Thanksgiving before there was a full House vote.

The proceedings of the caucus were secret, but many of the 240 members leaked word of what went on behind the closed doors.

When Ford was nominated by Nixon Friday night, there were confident predictions that the confirmation would zip through in a matter of days.

But highly placed Democrats, as well as rank-and-filers, have increasingly raised the tapes issue as one reason for taking a good, long look at the nomination.

Rodino has asked for a microscopic investigation of Ford's background from such agencies as the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which will mean that the hearings on the nomination will not begin for at least two weeks.

Since there is also an increasing feeling, expressed by Speaker Carl Albert, D. Okla., and others, that the House should act as a surrogate electorate in passing on a new vice president candidate, the public hearings may drag on for two weeks at least.

Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D. Calif., and Rep. John Joseph Moakley, D. Mass., have been pushing this week for adoption of a resolution to delay confirmation until the tapes matter is resolved. After the caucus, Waldie said he was "satisfied there is not going to be any haste" in taking up the nomination.

Arabs tighten Mideast oil supply valves

US fuel conservation efforts asked to offset Mideast losses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., has called for fuel rationing and other conservation measures, as eleven Arab oil nations announced they could cut production to try to force a halt to U.S. support of Israel.

Jackson, at a news conference Wednesday, said he was proposing legislation to authorize the President to declare a fuel emergency, impose compulsory limits on auto use, set up a rationing system and force electric utilities to switch to coal to fire their boilers.

He also urged use of the U.S. Navy strategic oil reserve field at Elk Hills, Calif., to fill any gap left by an Arab oil shutdown. Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee said he opposed such a move.

President Nixon met at the White House Wednesday with foreign ministers of four Middle Eastern oil-producing countries — Algeria, Kuwait, Morocco and Saudi Arabia. Nixon called the meeting "constructive." Later, Foreign Minister Umar Al-Sagoff of Saudi Arabia turned away and declined comment when a reporter asked him whether a possible "cut-off" of Arab oil exports to the West was mentioned.

The Arab oil producers announced after a conference in Kuwait Wednesday they intended to cut production five per cent a month until the West forces Israel to return lands captured in the 1967 war and the rights of the Palestinians are restored.

The House Wednesday approved 387 to 72 a bill for mandatory allocation at the production and wholesale levels of all petroleum products, and to forbid their export. The Senate had passed a similar bill, and the two now go to conference.

Jackson said his more drastic proposals would save 3.3 million barrels of oil a day, more than "covering" the 1.2 million barrels a day currently imported from the Mideast.

Calling the Arab cutback "oil blackmail," Jackson said "I believe this kind of move on the part of our government will have a healthy effect on bringing the war to an end. I think the Arabs will better understand that they cannot force the United States to change our policy by using oil to threaten us."

Oil bill passes

(c) N. Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — The House approved Wednesday a bill requiring the government to play a broad supervisory role in the distribution of crude oil and petroleum products.

By a vote of 337 to 72, the House passed the Emergency Petroleum Allocation act of 1973 and sent it to the Senate. Approval there was thought likely, but not before the end of a semi-official recess on Oct. 29.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Torbert H. Macdonald, D-Mass., would require the administration to extend its present allocation program to crude oil, gasoline, the heavy residual oil burned by utilities and other products.

Bombs wreck town

BELFAST (UPI) — Guerrillas firebombed the Londonderry post office Wednesday and robbers shot the postmaster in the County Fermanagh village of Derrylin, then blew up the town's general store and post office.

A Post Office spokesman said two bombs planted by five armed men in the Londonderry post office caused an explosion and fire that gutted the building. He said there were no injuries.

In other violence, an army spokesman said a soldier shot in the leg Wednesday by a gunman in the Creggan district of Londonderry was in serious condition today.

Cambodian road link restored

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Government troops Wednesday knocked out a rebel roadblock on Highway 4 and reopened the supply route to traffic, the high command reported today, restoring Phnom Penh's vital land link with the sea.

Highway 4 had been closed for three weeks by a rebel roadblock at Trapeang Kraloeng, 34 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, until last Thursday. Government truck convoys safely covered the route last Saturday but another road block was established Tuesday.

The command reported more fighting during the night at Trum Kham, 22 miles southwest of Phnom Penh on Highway 3. An Rong said government soldiers still held the town today after throwing back a rebel attack during the night but that heavy insurgent fire prevented helicopters from evacuating the wounded Wednesday.

US health plan drafted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) will propose a national health insurance plan next week which would compel employers to offer health insurance costing an average $800 each to 32 million families.

Under the plan, unemployed, disabled or otherwise uncovered persons would be eligible for health insurance subsidies under a Government Assurance Plan (GAP) that would replace the federal-state Medicaid program for the needy, one of the plans architects Wednesday.

Checkup on Ford ordered

(c) Chicago Daily News

MIAMI BEACH — President Nixon has ordered a comprehensive FBI investigation of Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., the man he nominated to succeed resigned Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, it was learned today.

The presidential directive was disclosed after two FBI agents questioned AFL-CIO President George Meany on the eve of the AFL-CIO convention.

Meany said the agents told him they were questioning labor leaders about Ford "on instructions from the President." He said he barely knew the House Republican leader and had no financial dealings with him.

Gerald Warren, deputy press secretary to the President, said Nixon had asked for the inquiry and would make the results available to House and Senate committees considering Ford's nomination.

"The president has ordered a thorough, complete check by the FBI," Warren said. He said an initial check was made after Agnew resigned Oct. 10 and Ford's selection was announced Friday night.

But "the climate of the times" required a more complete field investigation, Warren added. He said he was almost positive that the President did not supply the FBI with names of anyone to be interviewed, however.

HEW will not recommend a financing method but will present several options when the health insurance plan is presented at a meeting of President Nixon's cabinet, the official said. These include but are not limited to taxes on health insurance, increased income for Social Security taxes and a requirement that states pay part of the GAP subsidies.

Other key elements of the proposal described by the HEW health official:

—The Standard Employer Plan would cost an average of $600 per family with employers paying 75 per cent of the premium and workers 25 per cent. Families could turn down the insurance coverage, but employers would have to offer it. Or families could accept and supplement it with other insurance.

—An individual patient would have to pay the first $150 of medical costs each year with a cutoff of $450 per family and 25 per cent of the cost above that up to $1,500 in medical expenses.

—All medical services covered by the plan would be free after the family had paid $1,500 in any year. The Administration's 1971 health insurance proposal to Congress put a ceiling on "catastrophic" protection of $50,000 per person.

—The government would subsidize premiums for poor persons on a graduated scale that would provide full payment of premiums for families with less than $5,000 annual income and partial payment of premiums for families up to the $10,000 income level.

Benefits covered on a cost-sharing basis would include hospitalization, most doctors' services, some mental health care, limited dental services and out-patient prescription drugs.

—Insurance companies would provide medical credit cards which persons could use to buy health services without exchanging money. The patient would present his card, for example, to a doctor or hospital which in turn would bill the insurance company. The insurer would reimburse the doctor and would bill the patient for his share of the cost.

Slow probe, aide asks

BALTIMORE (UPI) — U.S. Attorney George Beall wants state prosecutors to put off any investigation of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew until he completes his own investigation of Maryland political corruption.

Beall, who headed the investigation that led to the resignation of Agnew last week, said Wednesday he has asked state's attorneys in two counties to delay proposed investigations of Agnew's activities because he said the probes could result in "confusion and generally inhibit our work."

Beall said Federal and state prosecutors would find themselves competing for the same material and witnesses.

TV suit in IF reslated

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court will rehear next spring a class action suit against Upper Valley Telecable Co. and the city of Idaho Falls.

The original suit, filed by Eugene L. Bush on behalf of himself and other subscribers of the cable-television service, claimed Upper Valley had two different rates — one for full service and one for partial service.

Bush claimed that Upper Valley did not provide full service although it was charging full service rates. The rate schedule shows a charge of $5.75 per month for full service and $4.75 for partial service.

In an earlier Seventh District Court ruling, Judge Henry

S. Martin ruled in favor of Upper Valley and also said Bush could not file a class action suit.

The Supreme Court reversed the lower court decision this summer.

In asking for the rehearing, attorneys for Upper Valley said the State Supreme Court decision was unclear as to whether it determined the damages or whether the trial court is to decide the amount. Bush's suit asked for $1 per month for each subscriber.

The Supreme Court said the rehearing will be held next spring during its annual session in Eastern Idaho.

Unnecessary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, has charged the Overseas Private Investments Corp. (OPIC) tended to get the United States unnecessarily involved in the internal politics of small countries and was not promoting investment in them.

Church, in a statement issued Wednesday with the report of the Senate foreign relations subcommittee he chairs, said, "We found that the claims made on behalf of OPIC were simply not supported by the facts."

"There was little evidence, if any, that OPIC causes private investment to be made in countries. Indeed, OPIC does not even seek to determine whether its guaranteed investments would have been made if no insurance had been available."

The Idaho senator also said the OPIC program was not being "managed in accordance with sound insurance principles."

Boise men walk from plane crash

BOISE (UPI) — Two Boise men walked away from a single engine plane that crashed at the Boise Air Terminal after the controls malfunctioned on a landing.

Ronald Miner, 37, the owner and pilot of the plane, and Tim R. Gernay, 23, a passenger in the plane, walked to the terminal after the crash and were taken to a hospital for treatment of head and face cuts.

Boise Police Sgt. Vernon Blisterfeldt said the plane had made its final approach and clearance to land and was about 20 feet off the ground when Miner found his controls were dead.

He cut his engine and the plane dropped, caught a wing and flipped over.

Blisterfeldt said it took police and fire department personnel about 15 minutes to find the wrecked plane after the crash.

Phaseout urged on business aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A subcommittee headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, has prepared a report highly critical of the government program which insures American investors against expropriation of their foreign properties.

It recommends the program be phased out during the next five years.

Church and Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., scheduled a meeting of the Senate subcommittee on multinational corporations today to make public the report and explain their criticism of the Overseas Private Investment Corp., the government corporation which runs the program.

Although Church declined to make the report available in advance, reliable sources said it would recommend legislation to force OPIC to transfer at least 25 per cent of its coverage to private insurers by 1975.

and phase itself out completely by 1978.

The report is based on six days of hearings last summer during which the subcommittee heard testimony on alleged manipulations by the Reynolds Aluminum Co. to get a $500 million Opic policy on a smaller in-Jamaica that was worth far less than that.

Church is said to feel that OPIC, which was set up in 1971 to replace a U.S. Aid-Financed insurance program, provides a route through which big companies can exert undue influence on U.S. foreign policy.

In addition, sources said, he has been angered by large-scale Opic efforts to lobby against his proposal even before it became public.

OPIC sources reply that the legislation he is proposing would force the corporation, currently charging a $30 million annual profit, to sell to private insurers 25 per cent of the $3.4 billion in policies it has in force, at a heavy loss.

Smylie top citizen

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho State Chamber of Commerce announced today it has chosen former Gov. Robert E. Smylie as the 1973 Distinguished Citizen of Idaho.

Smylie served as chief executive of Idaho from 1955 to 1967. He will be honored at the 47th all-Idaho Congress banquet in Boise Nov. 5.

The banquet will be held during the state chamber's yearly meeting which this year is being held in conjunction with the 27th Taxpayers Conference.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus will address the luncheon session and is expected to discuss state fiscal matters that will be up for consideration in the 1974 Idaho Legislature.

Andrus creates office on energy for 3 years

A list of voluntary energy conservation practices, running several pages in length, that the governor asked all Idahoans to comply with.
Andrus also said that while the northwest states will have to work together to conserve energy, "I have made it clear that dams owned by private firms in Idaho will not release storage water this winter to help downstream states unless a major crisis evolves.

To do so, Andrus said, would be "the same as tossing to the wind Idaho's agriculturally based economy."
In other remarks Andrus repeated his opposition to the National Reactor Testing Station serving as a repository for nuclear waste material from across the country.
But he said it was important to distinguish between the state serving as a "garbage dump" and its mission of fuel reprocessing and storage of the radioactive waste that results from the NRTS operations themselves.
He also repeated his earlier request for independent state monitoring of the NRTS for radiation, even if it meant a change in Federal law.
Andrus also:

Disputed the allegations of one former Department of Environmental and Community Services employee that the department was being used to promote his re-election campaign.
Said a campaign disclosure law was "absolutely necessary" for congressional, gubernatorial and other candidates for full-time office.
Said he saw "nothing wrong" with staff members in his office receiving their pay from other executive agency department budgets, although he did say he would welcome legislative appropriations to permit reflection of his staff size. The question arose earlier in the week when it was revealed that his press secretary, David C. (Chris) Carlson was on the payroll of the Department of Law Enforcement.

Agreement

HONOLULU (UPI) — The board of directors of Alexander & Baldwin Inc., of Honolulu, has reached an agreement in principle for the acquisition of Rogers Brothers Co., of Idaho Falls, Idaho.

If the merger is approved by stockholders of both firms, Alexander and Baldwin will issue 1.9 shares of A&B stock for each of Rogers' outstanding stock shares. An A&B spokesman said it would amount to about 1.1 million shares of A&B common stock.

Lawrence S. Pricher, president of A&B, said Wednesday Rogers will be operated as a subsidiary of A&B, with its management continuing.

Rogers Brothers was founded in 1876 and has operations in Idaho, Washington, California and North Dakota. The firm is a major producer of high quality corn, bean and pea seeds and dehydrated potato and vegetable products.

Agency proposes wilderness plan

BOISE (UPI) — A joint river-wilderness proposal locking up the main Salmon River and 1.5 million acres of central Idaho will be proposed soon by the U.S. Forest Service, the Idaho Statesman reported today.
In a story by reporter Mindy Cameron, the newspaper said regional forester Vern Hamre of Ogden, Utah, is expected to release the proposal in a day or two.
Hearings will be scheduled Nov. 26 in Boise, Nov. 28 in Lewiston and Nov. 30 in Pocatello, the story said.
The wilderness recommendation is for a Salmon River Wilderness north of the Salmon River in what now is the Salmon River Breaks Primitive Area and an Idaho wilderness to the south.

The story said two major exclusions are proposed in the Idaho wilderness: Thunder Mountain, a 32,767-acre region with some roads and mineral mining.
Made jointly with Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, the river classification calls for 79 miles of wild river, 53 miles of scenic river and 105 miles of recreation river.

'People's press' conference held

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus chose a "people's press conference" Wednesday night to reassure Idahoans he has not forgotten a 1970 campaign promise to improve north-south highway travel in Idaho.
Andrus told the listeners during a 30 minute special radio and television program that "money is our problem—Idaho is a very large state."
The governor also said he will propose an additional general property tax reduction to the next session of the legislature.

The proposal will include "circuit breaker legislation" to assist elderly retired persons on fixed incomes.
Such legislation, being considered by a legislative interim committee, attempts to ease the pain of property taxes on elderly persons who are least able to pay.
During the program Andrus also:
Spoke out against marijuana and drug pushers but said he has compassion for those who need treatment. He promised a hard time for those who peddle drugs in Idaho.

Commission aids fired secretary

BOISE (UPI) — A female secretary who was fired after neglecting the physical advances by her boss, has found an ally in the Idaho Human Rights Commission.
The young woman said she filed a complaint with the commission because she needed her job to support herself and her small child. She said her husband recently left her.
An investigation by the commission found that other employees in the office had the same problem resulting in a rapid turnover of female workers.

"It is certainly not a new problem for many women who need their jobs but have employers with wandering hands," said Doris Blough, commission chairman.
"This is considered sex discrimination when it is found in investigation that the employer does not treat the male employees in the same way," she said.

Hansen raps move to limit vitamins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, has introduced legislation which would prevent the Food and Drug Administration from putting into force regulations making vitamins and food supplements less convenient and more expensive to buy.
Wednesday Hansen said,

"While some aspects of the regulations are uncontested in their value, a storm of controversy has arisen over others which attempt to limit the combination of ingredients or restrict the potencies of vitamins to within the limits of FDA's established minimum daily requirements."

Andrus favors law

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus says he favors a law requiring top state officials to disclose their campaign funds, but he said the law should not offer all officials.
Andrus said if legislators and other elected officials — such as school board members — were required to disclose campaign funds, "it would drive a lot of people out of public service."

Andrus said Wednesday he fully plans to disclose all his campaign funding, if he runs for re-election in 1974, and even if the next session of the state legislature does not adopt a campaign disclosure law.

Employees walk off

MENAN, Idaho (UPI) — Some 200 employees of the Idaho Fresh Pack potato processing plant in Menan, seeking security, more benefits and authority guarantees have walked off their jobs at the peak of the processing season. Officials at the plant are hiring employees to fill open positions left vacant by the strikers. The company officials said the plant is working at capacity.

One man who was picketing, Keith Smith, told the Jefferson County Sheriff's office he was accosted by a son of a stockholder. He told deputies he was struck repeatedly by the man and Smith added he plans to file charges in the case.

Pocatello man critical

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Brent Goodrich, 32, Pocatello, is in critical condition at St. Anthony Hospital recovering from gunshot wounds received in a shooting at his home Wednesday morning.
Goodrich returned to his home after midnight and instead of retiring went to another part of his home.

His wife, Jean Goodrich, 30, heard a noise, saw a figure in the dark kitchen, and fired five times with a .25 caliber pistol at what she thought was an intruder.
Goodrich was hit four times in the neck, chest and abdomen.

Idahoans unhappy with price lids

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Although split on solutions to inflation, most Idahoans are dissatisfied with the U.S. government's economic control policy, according to a poll taken by Rep. Orville Hansen, R-Idaho.

While 39 per cent of 16,000 persons responding to the poll favored ending all controls by the end of this year, 29 per cent were in favor of extending controls to all wages and prices. Six per cent wanted continuation of present controls indefinitely.

Nineteen per cent favored other options and seven per cent were undecided. "Of the 10 per cent that proposed other alternatives, many said they weren't sure what action should be taken but that present policies were not the answer," Hansen said. The poll was taken in Hansen's second congressional district.

"We seem to be faced with the undesirability of controls and the unacceptability of inflation, and are trying to weave an intricate pattern between the two. Unfortunately, we can only see the results of what has already been tried. As to where we might be without controls, or if controls had been even more extensive, we can only speculate," Hansen concluded without saying how he represents Idahoans on this controversial issue.

BUHL — Sp 5 Constance Thomietz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Thomietz, Buhl, will leave Friday for the Madigan Medical Center, Ft. Lewis, Wash.

She is a 1968 graduate of the Buhl High School and enlisted June 4 under the accelerated enlistment option as a licensed practical nurse and was immediately awarded the Sp 5, E-5 rating, equivalent of a staff sergeant.

She completed basic training at Ft. McClellan, Ala., and spent the past two months at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., where she completed a basic medical course.

She selected Madigan Medical Center for her permanent assignment according to S-Sgt. Richard G. Coop, Army recruiting officer, Twin Falls.

She has been guaranteed at least 16 months there.

Rupert, Heyburn will receive sewer funds

BOISE — Two Mini-Cassia towns have received state sewer construction funds, according to the Department of Environmental and Community Services (DECS).

Rupert will receive $14,250 for planning of expansion and improvements to its existing sewer plant, while Heyburn will get $2,214 for "basic preliminary planning" for an improved system.

One other Idaho community, Donnelly, will receive funds. Its share is $19,083 for final construction of a treatment facility.

According to Orlando Dalke, coordinator of municipal sewer programs for DECS, all three communities now have facilities to provide secondary sewage treatment, removing 90 per cent of the pollutants from wastewater.

Dalke also said both Rupert and Heyburn are in line for more funds in the future. Rupert's proposed improvements are expected to cost about $2 million, he said.

"State funds pay for 15 per cent of improvement projects for sewer plants."

Staudaher bound for USSR, Finland, Sweden

TWIN FALLS — Instead of striding to the school district office here March 1, district Supt. George Staudaher will be bound for the USSR.

Not as a defector, but as a participant in one of the American Association of School Administrators (AASA) international study missions next year.

Staudaher, along with a team of other school administrators, will travel to Russia, Finland and Sweden to study the educational and cultural systems of these countries.

The group will visit ministries of education, meet with professional groups and visit schools, colleges and universities. Seminar discussions will follow each visit.

Staudaher was nominated to go on the trip by the AASA, but most of the journey's expenses will be paid for out of his own pocket, Staudaher said. The school district will also help finance the trip.

Gem aide pay raise illegal

BOISE (UPI) — Commissioner John Rönning of the Big Sky Conference got his $87.50 per month pay increase nearly two months before the State Board of Education gave it formal approval, state records show.

Rönning, although an employee of the conference, is carried as a certified state employee to enable him to receive retirement, insurance and other fringe benefits.

His certificate of appointment, signed June 9, 1971, by President John Barnes of Boise State College, lists him as Big Sky Commissioner and "athletic consultant" to Boise State.

Last Friday, Barnes said Rönning's title simply was a means of getting him on the payroll so he could get the fringe benefits. He said the conference re-imburse the school for what these and the salary cost.

Nevertheless, as a "state employee" in name if not in fact, Rönning's salary increase — voted by the President's Council of the Big Sky — must be approved by the Board of Education to make it legal.

This was done last Friday and the action was retroactive.

However, Rönning won't receive the money as "back pay" in a later paycheck. He got it in his August pay warrant from the state.

Public Instruction Superintendent D. F. Engeling, a member of the Board of Education, sees nothing wrong with this since Rönning is an employee of the conference.

He said the raise is approved by the conference and indicated the Board of Education's approval is merely a formality.

The raise went through the auditor's office without question because the papers were in proper order when received from Boise State.

Whether this could happen in the case of employees fully under jurisdiction of the Board of Education seemed uncertain. Engeling indicated the board could hold the college president to answer for it if that were done.

In reporting the arrangement with Boise State and the conference, Barnes said it had the approval of the attorney general's office. But nobody in that office can remember telling Barnes or anybody else that it was all right.

Attorney General W. Anthony Park has asked his staff to inquire about the arrangement. He said he may have a statement later on whether it is legal.

State Retirement Director T. F. Terrell said it will not affect the retirement system. "From our standpoint it's a matter of relying on the employer," Terrell said. "I don't see it has any adverse economic impact along the line, if the proper person is paying for it."

Warning on fire danger

TWIN FALLS — Hunters going into the Twin Falls ranger district of the Sawtooth National Forest were reminded today an unusually high fire danger exists.

Lewis Munson, district ranger, said the past week of beautiful Indian summer weather has had its drawbacks. The warm temperatures have dried out the vegetation, much of which is now dead, and has created one of the highest fire dangers of the season.

Usually by this time of year the area is moist and temperatures are considerably lower.

Munson said hunters are asked not to build fires except in improved camp sites. When smoking, Munson said, hunters and others in the forest area should sit down and stay in one area, making sure they are on bare ground and that cigarettes and matches are completely out before leaving.

3 ordinances get nod at SV

SUN VALLEY — The Sun Valley City Council adopted three new ordinances in quick succession Tuesday night.

The ordinances included the following:

- A Green River ordinance requiring a permit for excavators in non-commercial areas of the city.
- An ordinance requiring a permit for excavation exceeding one foot within the city streets, right of ways or utility easements.
- An ordinance prohibiting the trespass of animals on private property and regulating the leading or herding of animals on city property.

In other action, the council adopted a resolution to invest surplus general fund moneys in short term time deposits. Comptroller Ona Heap said these funds totaled about $32,000.

By a second resolution, the City Council approved the investment of about $2,000 in surplus from the city employees retirement fund.

The council also approved the designation of one judge, and one clerk for the city election and approved allocation of $25 for each official.

player to cover the equal honor with a higher honor, so his failure to play the king or to stop to think gave no clue to the monarch's intentions.

Hamlet soliloquized further. "The fair Ophelia will be mad if I don't lose this contract. Can I lose it? Yes, I can. Can I lose it if I don't finesse? No, I can't."

He was right. If he finessed, West would take his king and lead another diamond. Dummy's second high diamond would be ruffed and with two tricks in the defense would still collect a diamond and a spade.

But Hamlet went up with his ace, led a second trump and claimed his contract.

A—Bluff or finesse. You want to be in six and are perfectly willing to play seven if your partner decides to bid it.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding five hearts your partner has bid five no-trump over your five diamonds. What do you do now?

Answer Tomorrow

Oswald & James Jacoby

To finesse or not to finesse, that is the question, soliloquized Hamlet, the melancholy Dane.

Childrenstern had opened the queen of diamonds against Hamlet's four-heart contract.

The fair Ophelia, who had merely raised Hamlet from one heart to two, put down a sound dummy. Hamlet's hand was sound also and a quick look at dummy indicated that everything was fine in the state of Denmark.

He won the diamond lead in dummy and played the queen of hearts. Rosenkranz, sitting East, was too good a bridge

MR. AND MRS. E. ASHLEY JAMES

Gooding rites unite couple

GOODING — Leslee E. Lisowski and Ellis Ashley James were married in 7 p.m. rites Sept. 29 at the home of the parents of the bridegroom.

The bride is the daughter of Edward S. Lisowski, Seattle, Wash., and Mrs. Elaine Langton, Boise. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Andrew F. James, Gooding.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a great-grandmother's dress with ecru embroidery and hand made lace over antique satin. She wore an heirloom cameo brooch, a gift of the bridegroom.

She carried a bouquet of Tullman roses, baby's breath and mountain daisies.

Catherine James was the bridal attendant. Robert Shrum, Pocatello, was best man.

The families and friends of the couple witnessed the vows which were made before the hearth banked with large yellow chrysanthemums and mountain daisies.

Following the ceremony, a champagne buffet supper was served to 60 guests.

The bride's table was centered with a wedding cake made from the bridegroom's family recipe. It was trimmed with roses and daisies.

The bride, a graduate of Bishop Kelly High School, Boise, attended Boise State College. The bridegroom was graduated from Gooding High School and attended the University of Idaho and Boise State College.

The couple and their families and the bridal party were honored at a Saturday brunch at the Mike Sloman home.

Mr. Lees reported a donation of dinnerware has been received from the Methodist Church.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are both 53. We have three married, college-educated children any parents would be glad to claim.

My wife and I married very young. (Shotgun wedding.) We are well off and respected in the community, but here's the problem:

My wife never worked outside the home. She spent all her time raising her children, and she did a fine job. About six years ago I caught her and the insurance man kissing in our kitchen. She swore it would never happen again. Two years later I caught this same man kissing her in the parking lot at a V. F. W. party. Again she swore she would never see him again. Last summer I caught them again. This time there was a big fight, and she confessed they had been seeing each other for six years, three afternoons a week!

Does he want to forgive?

She doesn't want a divorce, and this man [also married] doesn't want one either. I don't really want one. Do I love her? No! I could walk away from her and never look back, but I'm too old to start over.

How do other men who have been in this boat handle a situation like this?

NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO: How other men handle such a situation may be of no help to you. You need to decide how YOU want to handle it. Talk it over with your wife. It will take a lot of forgiving and forgetting, and forgetting what you forgave to keep your marriage intact. You say you are too "old" to start over! Plenty of men would give a lot to be 53 again. Life is short. Make it sweet.

DEAR ABBY: Since our second child was born, our 3-year-old daughter has been helping me immensely by answering the phone when I am busy. She speaks quite clearly, and answers the phone with, "Hi, my mommy is busy with the baby, but she is coming now."

Some people hang up as soon as they realize a small child has answered. Our daughter is so proud that she can help Mommy in this way. It takes only a few moments to listen to her, and makes her so happy.

Maybe your printing this letter will make some people more tolerant of a small child who answers the phone.

BUSY YOUNG MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Maybe. But maybe not. Youngsters answering the phone is the pet peeve of a surprising number of adults.

DEAR ABBY: I'm not sure whether I have a problem. Here's the situation: I'm 26 and my wife, Diane, is 22. We got back from our honeymoon last week and are living temporarily with Diane's parents and her sister, who is 21.

Our first night back, Diane was about to leave our room to take a shower when I noticed she had nothing on at all. When I reminded her that her father was in the house she gave me a puzzled look and left the room, naked. That was nothing. Since then she often goes around the house with very little on. She even irons clothes in the kitchen in her bra and panties. Yesterday I came home and found her sitting on the floor watching TV completely naked while her sister was setting her hair. Her sister always wears a little something, but not much. Their father was in the next room reading the paper.

Last night when I spoke to her about it she said that's the way she was brought up. I let it drop and decided to write to you.

Abby, I have no sisters so I don't know how girls normally act in front of their fathers. Are my wife and her sister typical? If I'm the one who's out of line please tell me, and I'll keep quiet.

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: In some homes, nudity is accepted casually, but they are the exceptions—not the rule.

Workshop set on women's role scheduled Oct. 27

by LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A day-long workshop to discuss the role of women in today's society is scheduled in Twin Falls Oct. 27. Planned under the direction of two Twin Falls women, Sonja Joelson and Tara Desmond, the session will be at the YW-YMCA building on Elizabeth Boulevard with babysitting service available to attract young mothers as well as working women.

There will be speakers from Boise and Pocatello as well as Twin Falls and time will be allowed after the panel presentations for questions and discussion, the chairwomen said.

It is hoped that interest will be generated to create several ongoing activities of service to women, such as a home stimulation program, arts and crafts groups, a babysitting co-op and a book club, with emphasis on books dealing with broader aspects of child care which the leaders said were "hard to find here."

Joelson said the purpose of the workshop is to get women from all walks of life to discuss common problems. It is in no way an effort to "put down" women who are satisfied to stay home and raise their families, she said.

Following registration at 8:30 a.m., the first panel, on "Laws and Women" is scheduled at 9 a.m. Speakers will include Judy Soderstrom, Boise, legal counselor for Boise-Cascade, who will discuss "How Changing Laws Affect Women"; Marge Slotten, Twin Falls, president of the Idaho League of Women Voters, Equal Rights Amendment, and Terry Castaneda, Twin Falls, Human Rights Commission, and "What Professional Women's Groups Have to Offer."

The 10 a.m. panel on "Medicine and Women" will include Dr. Stephen Greeb, Twin Falls, and his nurse, Delores Sims. At 11 a.m. mother-child relationships will be featured, with Ann McNevin and Donna Suh, both of the Child Development Center in Twin Falls, talking about the home stimulation program, and Barbara Jensen, Head Start, day care center.

Participants at the workshop are asked to bring their "brown bag" lunch and beverage will be furnished.

At 1 p.m. two professors from Boise State College, Dr. Wylla Barnes and Carol Harvey, will speak on the family, and Phil Grover, Twin Falls psychologist, will discuss mental health.

"Women in Society" is the title of the 2 p.m. panel, with Ann Martinez, and Mary Swanson, both Pocatello, to discuss women in politics, and Ella Nelson, president of the Twin Falls League of Women Voters, speaking on "Fulfillment Outside the Home."

Small discussion groups are slated from 3 to 4 p.m.

Minidoka tax levies raised

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Tax levies will have to be raised slightly in five taxing districts due to a $435,401 miscalculation in the assessed valuation in Minidoka County.

The mistake was "just mathematical error," Minidoka auditor August Bethke said Wednesday.

"We're not trying to hide anything. Anyone can make mistakes."

According to Bethke, the State Tax Commission, Department of Education and interested state officials have been notified and "the error has created no problems at the state level."

"No taxing district will lose a thing," Bethke said, "taxes will be as they should be. Everything will be rectified."

There will be no actual loss to the districts, according to Bethke, though some, such as the Minidoka County School District, will not be receiving the full amount expected based on earlier levy calculations.

The school district reported Monday night that it would lose an estimated $11,000 in expected revenue with the adjustment in evaluation. The loss, according to Bethke, is more apparent than real as the district is not getting the proper amount and had based its earlier budget on inaccurate evaluations.

The taxing district of north Burley, which is in Minidoka County, will feel the greatest change as that was where the main error was, according to Bethke.

New levy figures for the Minidoka County School District and for north Burley had not been computed by press time.

Also affected will be the hospital general taxing district. Levies in that district will be raised from .237 to .242, meaning a tax of $3.94 per $10,000 of real property value, compared to $3.88 under earlier calculations.

The Heyburn Cemetery District will see a raise to $2.45 per $10,000 in real property, as compared to the anticipated $2.22, following a change in levies from .136 to .150.

The Airport Authority will see an increase to .048 from the anticipated .047. This will mean residents in the district will now pay 78 cents instead of 76 cents in taxes for each $10,000 of real property.

Regional planning group hears recommendation at Jerome meet

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News writer

JEROME — The South Idaho Resource Planning and Development Association (SIRPDA) executive board Wednesday night heard several proposals and recommendations from the Soil Conservation District.

Jack Skinner, representing the Seventh Soil Conservation District in Cassia, Jerome, Minidoka and Twin Falls counties, presented the proposals and recommendations.

He said the district believes that it is important and necessary for SIRPDA to inform the public of its activities.

Skinner recommended that Cassia, Jerome, Minidoka and Twin Falls counties increase their per capita funding of SIRPDA's operation with or without state help. "Additional funding will permit an expansion of the SIRPDA staff which will in turn provide more effective extensive planning and coordinating activities to the area," Skinner said.

"The SIRPDA staff serves as advisers to the Jerome County Planning Council and the newly formed Twin Falls Planning Committee. It is recommended that the staff not only serve as advisers to these groups but as coordinators.

"It is further recommended that Cassia and Minidoka counties take whatever steps are necessary to include SIRPDA in their planning activities. If our four-county area is to grow in a progressive and orderly manner, it is imperative that all planning be done on a coordinated basis," Skinner said.

"It is a known fact that nearly every community in the four counties has experienced growth. This unplanned land use not only is taking out of production many acres of our most productive land but is placing an added tax burden on all citizens.

"We suggest that SIRPDA's executive board encourage every county planning and zoning committee to make greater use of performance ordinances, utility extensions and selected taxation to influence and guide the growth pattern in every community," Skinner said.

Skinner said in the Idaho Code agricultural land is designated to be a tract 5 acres or larger. We maintain that a 5 acre tract is too small for purely agricultural purposes. It is recommended that SIRPDA request the state legislature to change the 5 acre tract designation to 40 acres and that agricultural purposes be defined as using of the soil for planting seeds and raising and harvesting agricultural crops, the rearing, feeding and management of livestock.

Also speaking to the SIRPDA board was Marjorie Sloten, Twin Falls, representing the League of Women Voters. Mrs. Sloten read a statement on behalf of the Twin Falls League which encouraged the concept of regional planning. She said the group would like to work with the SIRPDA board on regional planning.

"The League has been exploring the functions of SIRPDA and we find that we can endorse and encourage efforts toward regional planning for the programs that we support," Mrs. Sloten said.

Ray Mickelson, State Planning and Community Affairs Agency told the board that a publication is available through Council of Governments (COG) which provides suggested guidelines on the development of subdivisions. He recommended that each of the county and city planning organizations use the publication to produce some uniformity within the four counties.

Les Martin, board member, reported on a meeting with the Wood River Resource Area Council of Governments and state planning.

"The main purpose of the meeting was to discuss a possible merger of SIRPDA with the WRRAC. Mickelson pointed out to us that with a merger, duplication of work would be eliminated and financing of the two organizations could be stretched. It was the general consensus of those present that this was not the time to merge the two bodies of government," Martin said.

Paul Kelly, executive director of SIRPDA, told the board that as long as they did not merge with WRRAC, it would preclude the possibility of any additional funds becoming available due to the fact that other federal agencies look at the two groups as one.

Bid opening set on road project

SHOSHONE — Bids will be opened Tuesday by the Idaho Highway Department for a project to include construction of 3 26-foot and 1 30-foot bridges and approaches on U S Highway 93, 20 miles south of Stanley.

The structures will be concrete, Howard Johnson, Shoshone, district highway engineer, said today.

In report on progress of current projects underway within the district, Johnson said excavating is underway for placement of pipe for installation of two structural plate pipes on the Balanced Rock - Kimberly road.

Motorists are urged to exercise extreme caution in negotiating the detour and to observe construction warning signs during the next months at the Perrine Bridge replacement project. A 1,000 foot detour on the south side of the canyon has been completed by MacGregor Triangle Co., and subcontractor, Miller Construction Co., is currently placing concrete for the highline anchor pads and preparing to construct framework for the south bridge abutment.

Also on that project, subcontractor, P. J. Construction Inc., is continuing with scaling and excavating operations for placement of the north and south pier footings, and excavating for the concrete anchor pads of 1,000 foot highline which is scheduled to be erected early next month.

This project, overall, calls for construction of roadway and 1,300 foot concrete and steel deck arch bridge over the Snake River on US 93, north of Twin Falls.

Judge talks at Jerome

JEROME — Judge Daniel B. Meehl spoke on "Crime at the Bargaining Table and Remedies" at a meeting of the Magic Valley Peace Officer's Association Wednesday night.

Judge Meehl told those attending that criticism directed toward courts and enforcement officers is not justified and that most of it should be directed toward society which makes the rules they must operate under.

He said offenses should be acted upon immediately and that appearance bonds be set as low as possible to insure appearance.

He also suggested evening court appearances in order to minimize problems for employed persons who might otherwise have to miss work.

Meehl told the peace officers that a judge does not have as much power as might be thought, and that he must serve as an impartial arbiter and he may ask impartial questions if necessary to elicit information.

Hansen sets school bond vote Nov. 5

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

HANSEN — Residents of the Hansen School District will vote Nov. 5 on a $380,000 bond issue to finance the first new school classrooms in nearly 50 years in the district.

The bond issue, if approved, will be costly for taxpayers, but will represent the district's only bonded indebtedness, Supt. Percy F. Christensen said. The last improvement in the Hansen School District was in 1951 for a new gymnasium. This has been paid off, leaving the district debt free.

Christensen said the proposal is for a new elementary school building to be located just west of the football field and within walking distance of other school facilities so the central lunch room and other facilities can be used by all grades.

The bond issue is based on providing classroom space for 225 students of grades one through six. There are now 145 such students in the district.

"We have been told we must prepare for kindergarten as part of the regular school system in the not too distant future," the superintendent said, "and we will be adding 76 new families in the district, just through the new mobile-home park which has been built here and is now filling.

"A housing development is also in the planning stage near Hansen which will further increase our school population," Christensen explained.

In addition to this, he said, existing school buildings, except for the gymnasium, were built in the 1920s and many of the rooms, especially those in the elementary building, are below recommended minimum size. Two of the regular classrooms are about 400 square feet below the minimum recommended size, he said.

The largest elementary room, a basement room, is 50 square feet below recommended size. Restrooms are inadequate in size and are below standards, he said.

Presently elementary and junior high school students are housed in the same building, which the district feels is not a satisfactory situation. Separate playgrounds are also needed and will be provided if the new building is erected.

Proposals for the new elementary building call for a modern hexagonal shape structure to give educational areas the most space with the least perimeter. The "open area" concept of construction is proposed to have "flexibility character and size. This will allow the change of each instruction area as to size and shape, depending on current needs.

Modern acoustics will eliminate the noise problem and visual screening will be provided for teachers to use at their discretion. The district does not intend any change in the educational system, Christensen said. Each teacher will be responsible for his or her own group of students.

As for payment of the $380,000 bond issue over a period of 20 years, Christensen said it will admittedly be a heavy bill for the taxpayers of the relatively small district. But considering there is no hold-over bonded indebtedness taxpayers will be looking only at the pending bill.

It will require a total of 11.9 mills on the district's total assessed valuation of $2.67 million. This, based on the current assessment ratio, would mean a cost of $1.19 on each $100 of assessed valuation.

If a property owner in the district owns a home with a market value of $10,000 he would be paying $19.04 per year more on his total tax bill to finance the school needs.

Christensen said the district voting will be in the Hansen High School building Nov. 5 from noon until 8 p.m. All qualified electors in the school district, 18 years of age or older may vote in the election. No registration is necessary. Voters need only be bona fide residents of the state of Idaho and county and school district.

Building nearly finished

SUN VALLEY — Work is nearly completed on a building to house a new radio base station for the Ketchum and Sun Valley Police departments.

The facility will be installed on Dollar Mountain and will include a 100-watt transceiver. The project is expected to improve radio communication between the two departments as well as with other area departments.

Materials for the radio shack were purchased by the Sun Valley Fire Department, which also plans to install a base station at the facility. Construction of the building and purchase of the transceiver were conducted jointly by the two police departments.

Community education in Filer to begin Monday

FILER — New fall classes in the Filer Community Education program will get underway Monday in area schools.

Those desiring to register for classes may do so at the elementary or high schools or may send their registrations to the Filer Community Education, Box X, Filer, according to Mrs. Roy Watson, community education coordinator.

A candlemaking class will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday at the Filer High School in the home economics room and will continue for six weeks under the direction of Mrs. Richard Schweitzer.

An advanced sewing class will start at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the high school home economics classroom with Mrs. Arlene Sommers, instructor. This is a six-week class.

Also beginning Tuesday will be a home decorating class to be held from 1 to 3 p.m. each week at the home of Mrs. Morris Carlson, one-half mile north of Deantman's corner.

Christmas crafts classes will begin Tuesday and will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. each week in the industrial arts shop at the high school with Carol Wells, instructor.

Don Royster will be instructor for a piano class to be held each Tuesday for ten weeks from the hours of 7 to 9 p.m. in the Filer Elementary School. Some music knowledge would be helpful for students entering these classes.

A body physical fitness class will begin at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday at the elementary school and will continue for ten weeks under the direction of Merle Stoddard. The class will consist of body coordination exercises for both men and women.

A "gun safety in the home" class will be held one night only, Oct. 25 from 7-9 p.m. in the high school. Bill Gordon, district supervisor of Idaho Fish and Game Dept. will be instructor and there is no charge for this class.

A "big game" seminar will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Oct. 30 in the Filer High School. Stu Murrell, Idaho Fish and Game Dept. will be instructor and there will be no charge. He will cover field care of wild game including habits and management of mule, deer, elk, etc. and will also present hunting techniques and field care of wild game meals.

Filer's community school program is under the direction of the steering committee of the Teachers' Corps program. Its aims are to make better use of the area schools and to present classes of interest to all ages.

Final contest set Friday

JACKPOT, Nev. — The Idaho Cutting Horse Association will have the final contest of the year at 1 p.m. Friday in Jackpot, Nev., according to Mrs. Norma Aslett, Twin Falls.

Five categories, out of state, open Idaho horse, 500 novices, 250 novices and novice beginners will be judged with first-place winners receiving saddles and second place winners being awarded belt buckles.

The high point horse will be given a trophy from the National Cutting Horse Association. Saddles and other awards are being donated by Jackpot area and Twin Falls firms.

Filer candidate runs unopposed

FILER — Charles E. Young will be the only contestant in the Filer mayoral race in the Nov. 6 election.

The incumbent mayor, Dan Kauffman, has declined to run again for the post.

Young is a retired farmer and has lived in the Filer area for the last six years. He has lived in Magic Valley since 1965 and lived for 21 years in Wendell where he served 12 years on the Wendell Highway District board and four years on the Farm Labor Association.

Three men are running for the two council posts. Paul Shover is seeking re-election to the two-year term, and Gilbert Chandler is seeking re-election for the four-year term and is opposed by Gordon Hendrix and Jack Pierce.

Shover was appointed earlier this year to fill the place of Russell Sheridan Jr., who moved from the city. Richard Schweitzer, incumbent councilman, is not running for re-election. The term of Charles Crawford Jr., other member of the council, does not run out this year.

Hansen doubles its population

The residential developments will also increase the need for a new water system in the city, Urle said.

He said current water lines in the city are "rather small" and the water lower needs repairs.

"We're probably going to have to build a new water tower, tank and lines," Urle said.

The city's lagoon-type sewage system "should be sufficient" to handle the population boost, according to Urle.

Regal will pay $25 for each sewage hook-up in the subdivision, Graybeal said. The money will be paid to the Hansen Sewer and Water Improvement Association and used to retire the loan on the current sewage system.

Candidate meet set

KETCHUM — Ketchum mayoralty and council candidates will be featured as a "Meet the Candidates" night Nov. 1.

The event will be sponsored by the Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce and will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Ernest Hemingway Elementary School.

Raft River bids still over budget

BURLEY — Bids were opened for the second time for the new Raft River High School auditorium Wednesday night.

For the second time, they were above budgeted funds. The Cassia County School Board accepted, with one dissenting vote, the low bid of Neilsen Construction Co., Twin Falls, at $148,916. The bid figure will include construction of a 5,600-square-foot auditorium without toilet facilities and without seating.

Bid specifications asked for a base bid, which in Neilsen's case was $174,550, then provided that three options be included, the omission of the seating, the omission of the toilet facilities and a cutback of about eight feet from the rear of the building, reducing capacity by about 84 seats.

To get the big down to $148,916, the board then accepted the omission of the seating and toilet facilities but decided not to cut down on the size of the building. Purchase of the seating will be a Raft River community project.

Down 6,000 feet for oil

MALTA — Drilling about 350 feet per day, the drill has penetrated over 6,000 feet into the ground one-half mile north of Strevell in a search for oil or gas.

Al Griffith, president of Standard American, a Texas company which is conducting the drilling operation, said Wednesday it was not yet certain if the drill would go beyond an earlier predicted 8,000 foot level.

"It all depends upon the condition of the rock at that point," he said.

The drill is currently penetrating layers of sandstone and limestone, which are the rock layers most likely to pocket the fossil fuels.

"As long as we keep drilling it always looks promising," he said.

Situation brighter

BURLEY — The power picture in the northwest is brightening, Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) officials said today, but they warned residents not to slow down conservation efforts.

There has been a small improvement over previous weeks in electric energy conservation in the area for the week ending Oct. 4, the officials said.

Tabulations show loads were below the estimates by 7 to 8 per cent for the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and western Montana, except the areas served by Montana and Idaho Power companies.

Bill Galbraith, director of the BPA Conservation Program, cautioned power users to sustain their power saving efforts particularly now that the heating season is approaching.

"It is encouraging that power users are responding so well to the need for conservation, but we cannot afford to ease up our efforts," Galbraith said.

"We are almost two months into the period over which we should have been reducing loads by 7.5 per cent. We have a long way to go and that 7.5 per cent must be sustained until the reservoirs start to fill again," he said.

About $10,000 in architectural fees is expected on top of the accepted bid, making the total for the project about $150,000. Cost per square foot on the accepted bid figure is about $28.50.

The school district budgeted $150,000 or about four per cent of the $3.9 million bond passed last spring in the district for the Raft River project. Neilsen's bid represents about 5.3 per cent of the total bond.

The project had been "streamlined" last month after bids of about $200,000 were received.

Architects told the board there was a three week deadline for completing and letting the plans out to bid for the new Declo Elementary School and gymnasium if the original building schedule was to be followed.

The project has been engaged while school district attorney Herman Bedke negotiates for an additional eight acres of land for the elementary schools. The additional acreage is required by the state.

US, USSR farm gap narrows

By BEHARND BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union has narrowed but not closed the "farm gap" — the wide gap between the productivity of Russian and American agriculture — an Agriculture Department report indicates.

A study by department specialists on Soviet affairs says that although Soviet productivity has improved in recent years, the total dollar value of Russian farm production remains only about 80 per cent of the US level.

The American advantage is not based on size. The USSR has 40 to 45 per cent more cultivated land than the United States. But this advantage, agriculture experts said, is canceled by factors including climate and the heavy US lead in agricultural resources such as farm machinery and equipment.

For example, the report says the Soviet grain area is about double the US total. But most Soviet grain lands lie farther north than those in the United States, which means production is riskier and the Russians must concentrate on relatively low-yielding crops like wheat rather than high-yielding crops like corn.

As a result, total grain production in the United States currently is estimated at about 20 per cent above the Russian total. That estimate probably understates the US lead, experts say, because Russian grain production reports are on a gross weight basis which includes a good deal of moisture and unusable waste.

The report said in contrast to the American system of farming for profit, nearly all Soviet land is socialized and operated under a central state plan. The central planners, in recent years, have been offering capitalist-style incentives including higher prices for farm products. But Agriculture Secretary Earl W. Buttz frequently cites the profit motive in US agriculture as a key factor in this country's productivity.

Among other comparisons cited in the report by Fletcher Pope Jr., Valentine Zabijaka and William Ragdale, were:

- Roughly a third of the Soviet Union's labor force is employed in agriculture. In the United States, only about 4 per cent of the work force is on farms, though many more are employed in agriculture-related jobs off the farm.
- Because the United States uses more technology in agriculture, each farm worker in this country feeds close to 60 persons, while each Soviet farm worker supplies only 7 people.
- Despite sharp gains in recent years, the Soviets claim less than half as many tractors and trucks on farms as the United States, although they have only a 10 per cent gap in combines. Soviet figures show one tractor for each 250 acres of cropland compared with one for each 66 acres in the United States.
- The Soviet Union outproduces the United States, in milk, wool and mutton. But the amount of beef and pork produced for each unit of livestock raised comes to only about two-thirds the U.S. rate.

Peppermint case lost

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court has overturned a lower court's award of about $47,000 to two Ada County farmers for damages to their peppermint crops.

Walter L. Henderson and Darrell Olsen brought the suit against Cimino American, Inc., and FMC Corp. alleging a herbicide manufactured by FMC and distributed by Cimino damaged their crops.

But the high court said the record of Fourth District Court did not show any competent, substantial evidence indicating the herbicide was the cause of the crop loss.

Victory puts end to talk of Mets' death

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Everybody had us dead yesterday," New York Mets manager Yogi Berra said solemnly.

But the Mets, who have come back from the dead so often this year, especially after they were buried in last place during July and August, found regenerated power from an ailing Rusty Staub and steady pitching from Jon Matlack to beat the Oakland A's, 6-1, Wednesday night and even the World Series at 2-2.

"The Mets, knowing 'you gotta believe' made believers of the A's as they pounded four Oakland pitchers for 13 hits. Berra, however, again had to yank his starting pitcher because of cold weather.

"I didn't want Matlack to hurt his arm and when he told me in the eighth inning that it was stiffening, I knew it was time to take him out," Berra said. "We had the same problem with (Tom) Seaver Tuesday night.

Berra sent Ray Sadecki in as reliever and the A's loaded the bases before the 32-year-old southpaw struck out Bert Campaneris to end the game.

"One more hitter at the plate and (Tom) Seaver would have had to come in. I'm glad it didn't happen," Berra added.

Berra then graciously told the press they were wasting time talking to him when Rusty Staub was the hero of the night.

Staub, still grimacing with pain when he swings a bat, hit an opposite field homer over the leftfield wall with two on in the first inning and drove in two more runs with a fourth inning single. He had a perfect night at bat with four hits and a walk.

"Are you in pain, Rusty?" Staub was asked.

"I'm obviously having a little trouble," he said cautiously, "but it's not that bad."

Staub said his night at the plate was "unbelievably satisfying. I adjusted myself to the situation, took some extra batting practice and it paid off."

Staub said Ken Holtzman's home-run-pitch was over the heart of the plate and he hit it perfectly.

"At first I thought it would drop between the outfielders, but the wind caught the ball and carried it over the fence."

A's would like to concentrate on game

NEW YORK (UPI) — Down to a man the Oakland A's hope that all the off the field nonsense finally is over so they can concentrate on playing baseball.

"I hope this whole mess is over now," said Reggie Jackson in reference to headline stories about the woes of Mike Andrews and manager Dick Williams during the past two days. "It's kind of been a boring World Series."

The capacity crowd at Shea Stadium certainly got its thrills Wednesday night, however, as the New York Mets defeated the tempestuous A's 6-1 to even the Series at two games apiece.

"It's amounted to a three-game series and I've got Vida (Blue) on Thursday and Catfish (Hunter) on Saturday," said Williams, who reportedly will leave Oakland after the series to take over the vacant New York Yankees managerial post. "And if there's a seventh game, Ken Holtzman will be my pitcher."

Questioned about the Yankee job, Williams insisted he'll be in Oakland-uniform-although he reportedly has informed the players of his decision to switch bosses.

Dick Green, the A's starting second baseman who misplayed Felix Miljan's ground ball in the fourth inning to help the Mets to three runs, brushed aside suggestions that there was more pressure on him since the Andrews incident last Saturday.

"I'm out there to do a job," said Green. "You don't really concentrate about the bad stuff. The ball was hit right to me. I knew what I was gonna do with it but I didn't."

"It's an even up series and we got Vida and he's due for a good game. If we can just go out and play baseball, we'll be alright."

Andrews, who suited up for the first time since Sunday after being forced into premature retirement by owner Charley Finley, appeared in the game as a pinch hitter in the eighth inning and received a standing ovation from the crowd, the Oakland wives and his teammates.

"It just gave me a lift," said Andrews, who addressed the news media and Commissioner Bowie Kuhn earlier in the day to explain his side of the bizarre story in which Finley forced him to sign a player saying he was unfit to play baseball.

"I'm a little tired now. I haven't been sleeping lately. It made me feel great to hear those people cheer like that. I never received a standing ovation before."

It's been that kind of series for the A's. A man like Andrews, a 200 hitter who saw only spot duty, getting more attention than big names like Jackson and Sal Bando.

"Our concentration has been affected by all of this fighting and the players ripping the owner," admitted Bando.

really don't know if he (Finley) is attracted toward the spotlight. But he's in it for sure.

"Now this thing is all square and we're going back to Oakland. I'd like to see the people out there react like they do here. It was tremendous what they did for Mike."

Camas County, Declo seek conference titles Friday

Camas County and Declo go for championships, Buhl and Gooding put their hopes on the line and Wendell eyes a clinch playoff berth as Magic Valley football action winds into its final standing conclusions Friday.

Camas County could wrap up at least a tie for a third straight Snake River eight-man title when it hosts Rockland, a team that apparently has improved (but enough?) since the Mushers rapped them 60-6 earlier. Declo can clinch the

Magic Valley league, crown by downing defending champion Raft River at Malta. Buhl and Gooding have to beat Jerome and Wood River, respectively, to stay in the SCIC top spot with Mountain Home — all with one loss — and Wendell, due to that tie last week, could nail down no worse than second in the Little Five by beating Kimberly. Buhl will be at Jerome, which up to now has to rank as the surprise team in the area — but, unfortunately so. Buhl was expected to be down while Jerome, riding three fine years, was expected to be solid again this season. But the Tigers have fun into all kinds of trouble and are only 4-3 with two of those defeats coming in the league. Still Buhl best not be overconfident. Right now the Tigers have to rate as the toughest A-2 trial horse in the state.

Gooding sails into Hailey fresh from that upset of Jerome while Wood River, a real up and downer, has to be given no worse than break even chance of snuffing those seven-day smiles. Gooding Coach Rod Rutherford hopes his season-long offensive angust found solace last week. If it doesn't, the Senators will be back on defense, which has been the best part of their game thus far.

Kimberly brings a 2-5 record to Wendell, which is 4-2-1, and this one should be a banger. Like just about all Magic Valley teams this year, Kimberly and Wendell are at their best when the other team has the ball — defense.

Wendell will also have an eye out toward Shoshone where the Indians, already a prominent part in the conference chase with the decision over Valley, will play host to Glens Ferry.

Either way, it appears that final confrontation between Glens Ferry and Wendell will have a big say in the playoff berths if not the standings.

Valley, its conference year behind with still a hope at 2-1-1, goes to Oakley for an afternoon battle.

That night, Murtaugh will host winless Hagerman and a hometown victory would clinch a trip to the mindome and fifth district playoff. Castleford, its first win under its belt, will be at Hansen where the Huskies are losing a few but hitting hard with linebacker Randy P's leading the way.

In eight-man play, Camas County is home for only the third time but an apt time with title clinching coming up. Dietrich, still perhaps without the main cog in its defense, Darrell Ballard, will be at Richfield, which needs someone to trip up Camas County to offset its lone defeat. Bliss, rejuvenated and eager, will be at Carey, a team it nipped in the closing seconds in the first meeting.

T.F. hosts Borah, Minico goes on road

The Twin Falls Bruins, less than impressive against the "prestige" opponents this year, go after perhaps the most prestigious Friday night in hosting the Borah Lions at Bruin Stadium.

Forget that Borah has lost two straight games (and check that out in your almanac for a record) and is apparently hopelessly out of SIC title consideration. Borah is still the prestige team of the conference, a reputation won over 15 years of making others eat the chalk lines while upstarts Capital and Highland and Skyline have languished in the cellar or not even been in existence.

Meanwhile, the Minico Spartans will travel to Caldwell and one of them will have to leave the SIC cellar. Both have lost five straight league outings and this one comes amid rumors — for the second time in four years — that Caldwell might feel more comfortable in less demanding circles than an SIC home.

But since Minico is happy in the SIC regardless of the outcome, the spotlight returns to Twin Falls where the Bruins need at the very minimum a respectable showing. Without it they could well wind up 3-7. With a win 5-0 or perhaps better might be possible.

Bruin Coach Denny Alquist is aware of the "letdown" Twin Falls has shown against Capital, Skyline and Highland all undefeated. He took a couple of psychological measures in early week. But by midweek no one appeared to have an idea of whether they had helped.

The Bruin staff is operating under the premise that Borah could be well down, being knocked off twice in a row, or come back strong and mad and ready for raw meat. The history of the Lions is clear. They never are down.

Twin Falls history this season has been a decisive voyage into psychology. The Bruins opened by dropping Jerome and Idaho Falls. They were destroyed by Capital and Skyline and then came back to whip a 3-1 Nampa team 34-6 before swanning before Highland 49-0. Of interest, Twin Falls took the initiative very decidedly in the three victories and made enough mistakes to blow itself out of contention in the early going of the other three.

Idaho Falls players very candidly reported after the first SIC game they expected to beat Twin Falls by three and maybe four touchdowns. Nampa expected a usual exercise in west supremacy over east. Trouble for them, they didn't bother to announce that previously. In the other three games Twin Falls was a decided underdog by general consensus and in none of the three gave even token resistance in the early going. Late on perhaps, early no.

The facts are, Borah has the third best rusher in junior football Mike Chase, 6.9 yards per carry, a total which also ranks him eighth in overall conference total offense. The fact is Borah lost 35-28 to Capital with starting quarterback Mark McKibbin never seeing action. Borah ranks third in conference scoring with three men in the top seven. The Lions are second best against the rush — Twin Falls' forte. They are third in total rushing with 1,743 yards — against 992 for the Bruins — and third in total offense with 800 more overall.

yards than Twin Falls. If the Bruins are going to beat Borah, something they haven't done since Borah first breathed football life into this state in 1958, they will have to play excellent football.

In review of films, the coaching staff reports only one lineman, Steve Brawley, has consistently performed to his pre-game instructions on defense.

Meanwhile, Minico looks at perhaps the most precarious junior in the league in Caldwell's Kent Hollingsworth. He shows up in every division but passing — rushing, total offense, receiving, punt returns, kickoff returns and scoring — among the top 10.

Minico's ills are hard to find with any consistency. One week the team is strong against the rush, the next week its weak. But on strong rush defense nights, the passing is abominable at times.

The Spartans feel like a submerged seal. If they can find the air hole, they'll be okay. Trouble is, the searching for the "jelling factor" continues and the season is in its final 40 per cent.

Statistically Twin Falls has only two men showing, sophomore Mike Allison who ranks fifth in rushing with 496 yards and fourth in kickoff returns with 223, and Bryan Smith, ranked sixth in kickoff returns with 178 yards.

Minico ranks best in receiving where Pat Warburton is second in catches with 17 and third in yards with 218, and Micky Hanks is fourth with 15 receptions and ninth in yards with 135.

Spartan quarterback Ritchie Donner is third in total offense with 769 yards and fifth in passing with 43 of 91 passes completed for 620 yards. But he is tied for first (or worst) in interceptions at seven. Hanks ranks first in kickoff returns with 20 for 434 yards.

A LUCKY PAIR of hunters, Mike Robertson and Duane Wiedenheft, both Twin Falls, display a limit of Canadian honkers taken over opening weekend near Soda Springs. The geese were taken over decoys in grainfields near Blackfoot Reservoir.

Alabama-Tennessee game rates as headliner for college week

By United Press International "It was a big game before I played at Alabama and showcases what intercollegiate football is all about."

The speaker was Paul "Bear" Bryant, coach of the Alabama football team, and he was referring to Saturday's Southeastern Conference game between second-ranked Alabama and ninth-ranked Tennessee, which brings together two undefeated-united clubs in one of the big games of the 1973 season.

"About all you need to say is Alabama versus Tennessee and anyone who knows anything about football realizes this game has been a headliner for a long, long time," says Bryant. "It has all the color, excitement, glamor, etc. that you could ask for in any athletic event."

The regionally televised contest is indeed the highlight of this Saturday's college football schedule, and the outcome is likely to decide the fate of the two schools for the remainder of the season.

Bill Battle, coach of Tennessee, played under Bryant at Alabama in the early 1960's and would like nothing better than to show up his old teacher. A victory by Tennessee would practically guarantee the 31-year-old Battle his first undefeated season as a head coach.

The Vols' chances of defeating the Crimson Tide, especially at Birmingham, Ala., are looked upon as slim, however. Alabama has far more depth than Tennessee and the Tide has been listed as a 17-point choice.

The series, however, has been remarkably close over the years. Alabama holds a slight 25-23-7 advantage in the 55-year-old series, which actually dates back to 1901 when the two teams played a 6-6 tie at Birmingham. This is the first year since 1946 that both teams will be undefeated and united entering the game.

Tennessee is the only member of the UPI top 10 which is expected to lose Saturday. The rest should have a fairly easy time of it, with the possible exception of third-ranked Oklahoma, which must face Big Eight rival Colorado at Norman, Okla.

The Sooners, however, are primed for revenge over Colorado, which last year stunned Oklahoma at Boulder, Colo., 20-14, and cost the Sooners an undefeated season.

Cage loop organizes

Organizational meeting of the Twin Falls adult basketball league will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at city hall, reports Recreation Director Chad Browning.

Browning said all team managers and players should attend.

Bucks defeat Golden State

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks used balanced scoring and a swarming defense to beat the Golden State Warriors 109-95 in a National Basketball Association game Wednesday night.

The Bucks, playing in their home opener, had five players in double figures, led by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar with 22, Bob Dandridge with 21 and Lucius Allen with 10.

The Bucks held a 52-39 lead at the half but Jim Barnett keyed a Warrior third quarter surge that narrowed the gap to 7-7 by the end of the period. Barnett had 18 points on nine shots in that quarter.

Continental Casualty presents a unique supplementary hospital policy CNA/PLUS

If your application is accepted, you will receive benefits of $40 a day... from the first day in the hospital for any sickness or accident.

If you compare the CNA/PLUS plan with many of the other supplementary hospital plans available, you'll find a number of features in our plan that set it apart. For example:

No waiting periods—your coverage begins immediately. If your application for CNA/PLUS supplementary hospital plan is accepted, we help insure you against any sickness or accident—not just most of them. You're eligible for the benefits this plan offers the minute your policy is in force...not 6 months, or a year or even two years from now. Unlike many hospital supplements, this plan offers you benefits beginning with your first day in the hospital...not three, four or six days after you're confined. You'll receive CNA/PLUS benefits no matter how long you are laid up in the hospital. There is no time limit and no maximum amount. Your benefits may continue for life, if need be, at the rate of $40 a day.

Benefits begin with your first day in the hospital for all sicknesses—any accident. In other words, if you are hospitalized, you have benefits coming. You are also entitled to benefits if your wife or children are hospitalized, assuming you've chosen one of the CNA/PLUS plans that covers them. Should you and your wife both be hospitalized, you'll receive benefits for both of you.

Your wife's benefit is the same as yours—in both the Husband/Wife Plan and the Family Plan. The Family Plan also covers each child at a benefit level of $20 a day while hospitalized. Benefits will continue to come directly to you, unless they are assigned to your doctor or the hospital, for as long as any one in your family is hospitalized.

It is common practice to put a time limit on benefits in many supplementary hospital plans. Or, a certain figure may be stated, beyond which, you are no longer entitled to benefits.

CNA/PLUS has neither limitation. It will return benefits on any person covered by this plan for as many days as that person is in the hospital—regardless of time or amount of benefits.

Here's this Plan's one EXCLUSION

This is the one exclusion you will find in the CNA/PLUS plan, word for word, as it appears in the policy: "We will not pay benefits for hospitalization in a hospital that does not customarily charge its patients." For example, benefits are not payable in V.A., federal, state or local government hospitals.

Part VII

When a Covered Person is hospitalized while this policy is in force, a Schedule beginning with the date, for each day of hospitalization, a Covered Person's Daily Hospital Commencement after the Coverage Successive periods of hospitalization is then in effect.

As you can see from the writing above, the CNA/PLUS policy is written in plain English—with a minimum of legal-sounding language. This is so you can really understand what you're getting. The portion of the policy reproduced above shows the large, readable print used throughout.

Renewability

Your CNA/PLUS policy can only be terminated or the rates changed if all policies with this same form number in your state are terminated or changed. Of course, you may terminate your policy at any time.

These are your CNA/PLUS benefits for each day, week, month you're hospitalized

Let's suppose you have the Individual Adult Plan and go to the hospital. Your benefits are $40 a day beginning with your first day of hospitalization, regardless of whether you are in the hospital for sickness or an accident. The amount depends on the number of days you are hospitalized. Example: 1 day—$40...7 days—$280...30 days—$1200 dollars.

Your benefits continue for as long as you're hospitalized. Under terms of this plan, you'll receive benefits whether you're hospitalized for a single day, a week, a year or the rest of your life. You're also entitled to benefits—sent directly to you, unless your benefits were assigned to your hospital or doctor, for your wife ($40 per hospital day) or any child age 3 months (through 18 years of age ($20 per hospital day) provided you chose the CNA/PLUS Family Plan.

How we can offer this unique plan at these reasonable rates. Most newspaper offerings of hospital insurance accept all applicants, regardless of their state of health, including many people with a history of illness.

To keep rates from going too high, many of these policies do not immediately cover health conditions for which an applicant has recently received medical treatment or advice. In insurance language, these health conditions are called "pre-existing conditions" and are often not covered for 6, 12 or sometimes 24 months.

CNA/PLUS is different. If you qualify, you're immediately covered for all conditions, including pre-existing conditions. This is possible because you're selected by our underwriters on the basis of a reasonably good health record, as stated in your application. Please be sure to include all items of health history, as required by the application. An omission could result in voiding of your policy.

Can people who don't have perfect health be accepted? Of course! In fact, we anticipate that we'll be able to accept about 80% of all applicants for CNA/PLUS. Once you're accepted, this plan covers you for all sicknesses, even those conditions you may have had before. And you're entitled to benefits immediately, if you do have to go to the hospital.

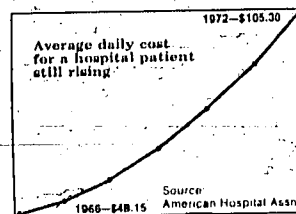

Why you may need CNA/PLUS If your regular hospital plan doesn't cover expensive medical-hospital surgical bills completely, you may wish to use your CNA/PLUS benefits to supplement your other insurance. You may also use your benefits for those necessary extras that some plans do not cover, including: ambulance, X-rays, lab fees and so on.

Many people also discover, after they get to the hospital, that groceries aren't the only thing that have been hit by inflation.

Future children automatically covered at age 3 months—no increase in premium. The CNA/PLUS Family Plan offers a number of advantages to any couple with children and to those planning more. Your premium does not go up because your family grows. (Some plans charge extra for each child covered. Your rate is the same whether you have one child or ten.

Your premium does not go up because you reach a new age bracket either. In fact, your rate cannot be changed unless the rate for all policies with this same form number in your state is increased.

The graph above shows that the average cost per day for a hospital patient (nationwide) has risen from $48.15 in 1966 to $105.30 in 1972. And the cost is still rising!

The point is, many of us—even those who have hospital and medical care plans—need the kind of supplementary benefits made available by CNA/PLUS. The cost is reasonable to those who qualify.

No reduction in benefits at age 65

If you are familiar with supplementary hospital plans, you may know that many such plans reduce benefits as much as 50% at age 65. This is not the case with CNA/PLUS.

This plan does not reduce your benefits at age 65, 70 or any other age. Nor do we reduce benefits for your spouse, if he or she is covered under one of the plans. You are entitled to benefits of $40 a day any time you are hospitalized—regardless of age, other insurance you may have, or Medicare. And, you may apply for CNA/PLUS at any age.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Was none other than the wise Judge Rentoul who listed these as the five great mistakes men make in life: 1. To measure the enjoyment of others by our own. 2. To expect uniformity of opinion. 3. To fail to yield to unimportant trifles. 4. To refuse to make allowances for the weaknesses of people. 5. To estimate the worth of strangers by their looks, their clothing, their mannerisms.

At the track, sir, you've got just about one chance in three of winning, if you bet on the favorite. Remember now, an elephant runs a pound of brain to every 1,000 pounds of body. A musicologist of note contends there are only about five good singing voices in every 100. The golf cart owes its success to the fact that it can't count, I'm told. Observed Jack Herbert: "English is a funny language." A fat chance and a slim chance are the same thing.

GRUDGE

The grudge battle, as is widely known, attracts the biggest bonfire. I mean a contest in which each competitor burns with an intense desire not just to win, but to humiliate the opponent. However, the sports promoters fail to take full advantage of this fact. Why not stage a stadium tug-of-war between selected wives and secretaries? Or a swimming meet between editors and advertising managers? Or a volley ball match between tenants and landlords? Or a pie-throwing contest between long-haired musicians and Marine Corps officers? Or a hog-calling competition between certified public accountants and Federal tax auditors?

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

Q. "How many drops in a quart of milk?"
A. Figure 15,360.

Q. "What's the ratio of women to men in 'Who's Who'?"
A. About one to 25.

Q. "L. M., what do you think of Howard Cosell?"
A. Believe I stand with the vast majority on Mr. Cosell, sir.

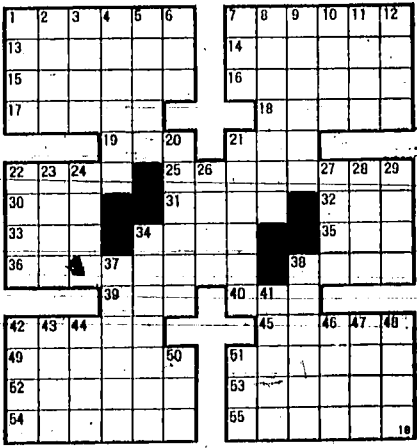

Those surreptitious with hidden cameras claim people smile the most in the South. Next most in the Middle West. Not quite so much along the Pacific Coast. And least of all in the Northeast.

South African soldiers now use parrots. That's right, attack dogs that parachute out of airplanes. Their handlers jump, too. Understand the canines and the men hit the ground at about the same time. Some pups, what? Correspondents report the more jumps those dogs make, the more they seem to like it.

MAJOR HOOPLE

Rearm pace swift

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American and Russian arms are pouring into the Middle East at a rate approaching 2,000 tons a day, but U.S. analysts believe the Arab-Israeli war might drag on another week or more before a decisive battle is fought.

When that battle comes, if diplomacy does not achieve a settlement first, officials say it will almost certainly take place along the Suez Canal.

But for the present, they say, it appears this battle will have to await the arrival of replacement arms in the front-line units of both the Arab and the Israeli armies. The days immediately ahead, they say, may well be devoted as much to regrouping and rearming as they are to fighting.

One official said the first indication that such a battle is under way "could be when the Soviets really start pushing hard for a cease-fire." Based on the results of the war thus far, officials said an ultimate battlefired decision would probably go in favor of the Israelis.

"The Arabs had a well-planned, well-organized, well-executed attack with extremely good cover and security," one official said. "They have been fighting well with modern and sophisticated equipment."

"However, they are still being outthought on a comparative basis in terms of casualties, aircraft losses, tank losses and territorial losses."

"It looks like the Israelis have been killing roughly three Arabs for one Israeli tank, and maybe two and one half Arab aircraft for each Israeli aircraft," he said.

Precise figures of the losses on each side, particularly the number of casualties, are considered by U.S. analysts to be extremely imprecise. The best figures available for Israeli hardware losses are about 100 aircraft and more than 600 tanks, officials said.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union are mounting major efforts to replace this hardware.

U.S. officials said the American airlift of arms to Israel hit full stride Wednesday, matching the Soviet Union in flying 700 to 800 tons of new war material per day into the Middle East.

In addition, the United States has flown 35 to 40 F-4 Phantom jet fighter bombers to Israel. Israeli cargo planes and at least one ship have landed in the United States with arms for Israel. The ship carried three A-1 Skyhawk tactical bombers, smaller than the F4 and unable to be flown to Israel, landed to its deck.

War under glass

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Russia and the United States have been discussing possible formulas for ending the Arab-Israeli war, but so far have made little or no progress, officials said today.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said, meanwhile, that the Middle East war is testing U.S.-Soviet relations, recently improved as compared with the era of the Cold War.

"This crisis through which we are now living is a test of the possibilities of diplomacy and of the real meaning of détente," Kissinger said Wednesday night at meeting of the Association of the U.S. Army.

"We believe," Kissinger said, "that there exists an opportunity for a decent and just settlement, fair to all of the parties, which must be reached first by bringing an end to hostilities and then by a dedicated effort that will end the conditions that produced the current conflict."

President Nixon, after meeting Wednesday with foreign ministers of four Arab, oil-producing countries, said he was seeking a "fair and just and peaceful" Middle East settlement. President's spokesman Gerald L. Warren declined to discuss details, saying, "We are in the process of delicate negotiations."

Kissinger and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly P. Dobrynin remain in daily contact in the hope of agreeing on a solution which could win support of the United Nations Security Council.

But the consensus of the diplomatic corps here, including those very closely concerned with the affair, is that there must yet be a final and major bloodletting before the Israelis and Arabs can be persuaded to accept an armistice proposed by the UN.

The news that the United States, along with contacts with other nations, was working with Russia to try to find a peace formula was disclosed Wednesday by State Department spokesman, Robert J. McCloskey.

When McCloskey was asked whether Russia "has actually provided a specific proposal to us," he replied: "In our discussions back and forth, ideas have been exchanged on the nature of a possible resolution. These have been, I would have to say, a little more general in nature than citing specific language (such as) the body of the resolution—but, yes, we have talked about that kind of matter."

President Nixon met with ambassadors of Saudi Arabia, Algeria, Morocco and Kuwait, and called the talks "constructive."

which air force formations and air defense units are taking part."

Israel claimed that a tank force it sent across the canal Tuesday was still operating behind Egyptian lines. Egypt claimed it had been wiped out.

While the two sides fought with tanks and planes on the 13th day of the war, it was disclosed that Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin has been in Cairo since Tuesday conferring with President Anwar Sadat, who launched the massive Egyptian army across the 102-mile waterway on Oct. 6 into the Sinai territory occupied by Israel since 1967.

There also were peace contacts between the United States and Russia, trying to preserve their détente, and in Washington Wednesday, President Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met with four Arab foreign ministers in talks described as constructive.

Both sides have thrown hundreds of tanks assisted by whole regiments of armored cars and heavy artillery and in

But the United States and Russia were both airlifting from 700 to 800 tons of war material daily to the warring sides—Russia to the Arabs, the United States to Israel. Russia admitted its airlift for the first time today.

The Sinai was the decisive front, Egypt claims to have advanced from eight to 10 miles beyond the canal. Israel said the advance was from three to five miles.

David Mead said the citizens group will meet tonight to discuss the subject, along with others. He indicated a suit to try to stop the development is possible.

"We are very concerned about the septic tank system," Mead said. "We just feel that would just drain right into the canyon and down the canyon walls."

Mead said "some farmers" who own land in the area of the subdivision, which was approved by the county commission Monday, have also threatened to file suits to stop development.

"Not only (is this) a rich situation," said Mead, "but also a threat to the agricultural base of Twin Falls County."

He cited figures showing that Twin Falls County ranks in the top two per cent in agricultural production of all agricultural counties in the nation.

"Many of us are in this canyon, thing basically believing that this agricultural base should be preserved," Mead said. He said subdivisions in "agricultural lands outside of towns and cities are somewhat incompatible with farming," because of the disturbance to farm operations from subdivision residents.

Desert battles raging

Egypt said it knocked out large numbers of Israeli tanks and armored cars in what the semi-official newspaper Al Ahran described as "an awesome armored clash—the largest battle of the war." It said the fighting continued into the early hours of today.

It turned the central sector into an inferno," Al Ahran said. Israeli armed forces chief T. Gen. David Elazar told the Israeli nation after Wednesday's fighting: "We are now calling the tune. Our superiority is clear and things are going well. But ending the war may take time."

With outside reporters barred from both sides of the lines, the details were skimpy but from what emerged, it appeared that the battle could be decisive if it continues. Elazar said it could be the turning point. Al Ahran said:

"Both sides have thrown hundreds of tanks assisted by whole regiments of armored cars and heavy artillery and in

Tapes required
NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Cabinet officers John Mitchell and Maurice Stans say they need President Nixon's White House tapes to prove they are innocent of federal bribery, conspiracy and perjury charges when they go on trial Tuesday.

But government prosecutors think Mitchell and Stans realize the motion for subpoena the tapes will probably be turned down. U.S. attorneys think they asked for them only so they could later argue they did not have a fair trial without them.

TWIN FALLS — A representative of Citizens to Save the Rim said Wednesday it will probably be a week before a decision is made on filing a suit against the county on the Meander Points subdivision approval.

David Mead said the citizens group will meet tonight to discuss the subject, along with others. He indicated a suit to try to stop the development is possible.

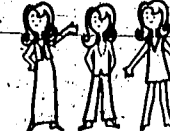

"We are very concerned about the septic tank system," Mead said. "We just feel that would just drain right into the canyon and down the canyon walls."

Subdivision OK rapped

Wiseman said the controversy over development of the canyon rim itself played no part in his decision to vote against the subdivision. He said he was opposed to a setback along the rim as favored by environmentalists.

"You can't stop development of a man's property," Wiseman said. He said, however, that the public interest was not served by the Frazier subdivision.

Commissioners Merl Leonard and William Chancey, who both voted to approve the subdivision, pointed to the fact that Frazier had met all legal requirements as reason for their approval.

"Our office is not to be used for harassment of citizens in any way whatsoever when everything has been complied

Leonard pointed to a section of the Idaho Code which says plats of subdivisions outside the boundaries of a city "shall be submitted, accepted and approved by the board of commissioners of the county."

Leonard said he interpreted the word "shall" to mean that the subdivision would have to be approved if it met all the requirements, rather than as a directive to county commissioners to act on subdivisions outside city limits.

Commissioner Wiseman said he thought the commissioners had the authority to approve or disapprove any subdivision, even if the other regulatory bodies had approved it.

"I took the attitude that the sole decision rested with us," Wiseman said.

said Tuesday that the homesites in the subdivision are now for sale. He said rough grading for the interior roads for the tract will probably start within two months.

Frazier said the lots in the 35-acre subdivision are priced between $10,000 and $20,000 per acre, depending upon their proximity to the canyon rim.

He said conditions for septic tanks are "just identical."

Frazier also said he foresees no problem with access to the subdivision.

Twin Falls Highway District officials had said earlier that they were committed to an all-weather access to Frazier's property. They said the access would be either along the present road or along a section line on which the highway district holds a 50-foot right-of-

James Sinclair, who owns the land to the east of the present road and through which the section line cuts, said Wednesday he would grant access rights along the present road if Frazier puts up $15,000 or obtains a surety bond in the same amount to ensure that Sinclair will not have to pay improvement costs.

Sinclair said he has had a verbal agreement with Frazier for about a year that he would deed the access if Frazier would shoulder the cost of moving fences and ditches along the present road.

The Sam Stradley family, who owns other land along the present road, could not be reached for comment. Sinclair said the Stradleys had indicated previously that they would deed the necessary

But the United States and Russia were both airlifting from 700 to 800 tons of war material daily to the warring sides—Russia to the Arabs, the United States to Israel. Russia admitted its airlift for the first time today.

The Sinai was the decisive front, Egypt claims to have advanced from eight to 10 miles beyond the canal. Israel said the advance was from three to five miles.

David Mead said the citizens group will meet tonight to discuss the subject, along with others. He indicated a suit to try to stop the development is possible.

"We are very concerned about the septic tank system," Mead said. "We just feel that would just drain right into the canyon and down the canyon walls."

Mead said "some farmers" who own land in the area of the subdivision, which was approved by the county commission Monday, have also threatened to file suits to stop development.

"Not only (is this) a rich situation," said Mead, "but also a threat to the agricultural base of Twin Falls County."

He cited figures showing that Twin Falls County ranks in the top two per cent in agricultural production of all agricultural counties in the nation.

"Many of us are in this canyon, thing basically believing that this agricultural base should be preserved," Mead said. He said subdivisions in "agricultural lands outside of towns and cities are somewhat incompatible with farming," because of the disturbance to farm operations from subdivision residents.
